And yet Russia's strangle hold is increasingly tightening nonetheless:
<http://afp.google.com/article/ALeqM5iU0z8n94gB9tITOp-GGBxH7vSjZA>

And with George Bush comdemning the Russians and demanding they respect Georgia's territory (i.e GTFO), as seen here:

<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/europe/7563452.stm>

Backed by Englands PrimeMinister, here:

http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk\_politics/7564012.stm

Ya'know, the same two Countries that went to the Midle East together and kicked ass, it seems that at least a cold war could erupt, if not a world war.

We love our oil interest, the Middle East conflict proves that, like hell we're going to let Georgia fall under the Russians control and secure all of the worlds oil resources.

I hope there is no global conflict, but it isn't out of the question.

I'm pretty sure it has already been said that George Bush can't actually do anything but request for things to be done. Russia is most probably doing what it's doing right now to spite America. I can't see this escalating at all to be honest (Russia has said it will pull out when it deems fit). The World War 3 idea is really far fetched and another Cold War is pretty unlikely (in my opinion of course). People are getting really paranoid about this...

It's because there's such an oil interest there. It is possible it could erupt into something larger, granted not too likely. But it isn't totally un-pheasible.

It wasn't too long ago, that people believed the next 'cold war' would involve the United States, and China. However, China is totally dependent upon the American economy doing well, and America is totally dependent on cheap goods from China to help stave off the effects of inflation, and keep a high standard of living.

Because the world is so interconnected by money, business, trade, and communication, there is little chance of there ever being another war on the scale of the previous world wars.

However, I am worried about Russia's actions, because they help demonstrate to the world how powerless America, and NATO are at this moment.

Just like the Great War was the last war ever because its participants were so horrified at losing almost an entire generation of soldiers? That one was called "The War to End All Wars," you know. All it took was a few power-hungry dictators to banish that notion, and we've been calling the Great War "World War I" ever since.

Humans have had wars as long as they've had nations and armies to fight them with, and the bigger the nations get the higher the cost of war rises. The only thing international interdependency means is that the next war will be just that much more devastating to everyone- don't be fool enough to believe it means there will never be another World War. Remember that both WWI and WW2 began with relatively minor border disputes that escalated catastrophically because of stupid, preventable mistakes and hubris. Thinking that it could never happen again is the surest way to make certain that it does.

How close are we to it? Depends on who you ask. I'd say "too close for comfort."

I dont get it

Einstein is implying that during World War 3, we'll obliterate each other so completely that the next war we fight, humanity will be reduced to the technological level of cavemen.

I don't know what you've been reading but apparently Russia are somehow helping Georgia people (Hilarious fox news report on it, but some kids states it) now it's not every day you see a American kid, primarily American kid, saying "Thanks to Russia for helping us" (we all know America hates Russia but I'm being a generalizing asshole here) so yeah, haven't been keeping up with the Russian war but eh - it's nothing.

The girl on Fox News was South Ossetian. They're the ones who seceded from Georgia, and they are the ones who Russia was helping... not Georgia.

.. not sure about you but Bush is a moron and a tool.

The choices he makes are definitely suggested to him, He always forgets his speeches and says the wrong thing.. stuck his middle finger up on TV and uhh.. oh yeah, has the mind of a 12 year old.

I'd say 5 year old but 12 does it's justice.

We don't hate him because he's a prick, just unfit to be a president of the worlds 'most richest country'

History will vindicate the President.

There are things going on much deeper than any of you can know. All you ever see is what media want you to see and you fail to think for yourselves.

The president has kept all of you safe and you will never know how hard it was to do it. When he made that speech in 01 saying it was going to be a long hard road and people would turn on him for staying the course, he knew the media and even his own would turn on him.

Yet he never gave up. He is a leader, and well respected by the military tasked with protecting us. They know he won't quit when a band of liberals string together and scare the world into thinking it's in chaos.

Yeah... I think I'm just going to go ahead and side with my founding fathers. They warned of the dangers of an interventionist foreign policy. Did we ever heed their warnings? For a short period of time, but then we disregarded their words, and now we've disregarded their document. Where does that put us? In a spiral towards an oligarchy.
