my neighbours (3 student girls, i know what you think but they all sux) keep making noise from time to time, and they refuse to shut the fuck up. the thin wall between makes this more terrible, and the police is doing nothing (idk why), and talking to them didnt work. so, i need a heavy metal song to wear them out. but this song should be like a repeating beat, so they wont like it and listen it . do you have any suggestions?

You can do what the US forces did to the Vatican embassy in Panama... blast 'Welcome to the Jungle' for hours on end, on high volume.

Van Halen's 'Panama' also works just as well.

Slipknot does the trick for creeping people out.

Opium of the People is good song to blast, Pulse of the Maggots too.

Forget the metal, you need bass. Get some techno and blast it really loud while they are trying to sleep. Or get a game like Dance Dance Revolution, In The Groove, or Stepmania.

The constant thumping of the bass will keep them up at all times of the day

I thought I was going to have to wander in with "the most dense metal is Osmium, not Mercury" but oh well.

Yeah, heavy bass will go through most walls etc.

As said, go with techno. Problem is though, it'll turn into an episode of Sienfeld, and YOU'LL end up behind bars for disturbing the peace.

Air horn- game over.

Otherwise, you could try high-frequency background noise. Think CRT noise, only a lot louder. If they can hear it, the sound is guaranteed to drive them absolutely bat shit crazy. To anybody sensitive to that frequency range, it's like a goddamn dog whistle- I can hear a floor above and across the house when the TV in our living room is on, and it is distracting to no end to have a CRT on anywhere nearby when I'm trying to get something done (sleeping, writing, thinking, etc). For that matter, I can't tolerate having a CRT on at all if there isn't some normal sound to mask it.

Experiment a little- find out if they're sensitive. If they are, crank it way, way up at the most inconvenient times. If they're not-terribly-brainy types, they may not even figure out what you're doing.

The start of aphex twin's set at Hardcore in Ulster, best braincell-killing noise. Ever.

Or, Promo - King of Pain, third bassline, the one after the vocals, has the hardest kicks ever.

you can play some Fear Factory heavy fast beat, has a strong electronic sound, and it's a heavy ass band in the first place <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=R-0hmBkkWBM>

whoever said slipknot, that's a great band to recommend they're aggressive as hell in the first few albums
