The program I am making a Word Document using Word 2007 I have a table of contents, that I want for example when you put your mouse over option "A.". it would high light the selection, the selection would be only the words that are in the menu.

What I want is when you put the mouse over one of these menu options the menu option box with the text would be highlited.

I understand what you mean, but I don't know how to do that, sorry
I don't even know if it's possible. Probably is though, knowing what Word can do.

Maybe a G.I.F. file is what I need but it requires too much programs to be installed and I don't know how to make those files.
