I was wondering if anyone tried this tactic and would it work? Keep in mind this is in non ff mode...1. play as hot-wire or tech2. find a willing pedestrian on yer side, preferably some one who can drive good.3. place remote bombs all over him, as many as you can place.4. have yer friend buy a rush vehicle and try to get into enemy base, preferably inside or near on of their buildings.5. When he dies (they usually do hehe), have him say NOW!6. you explode remote bombs. boom!no more building? upon dieing, woudl the remote bombs disappear or drop? I am not sure and will try it out sometime to test this thery. I just wanna know if anyone has tried this and if it works. Pretty hard to find willing teammates, ya know?medbot1

Thing is...I don't think there is a remote mine cap. And if it was infact 30, that should still mess up a building pretty good? Don't u think?medbot1

I've rigged a APC and pushed it against a building, ignited it and it didn't even nick the building, but the APC sure did go byebye. I don't think it works, unless i'm doing something wrong.

I doubt it. I've planted plenty of C4, hehehe, I like C4. If you miss the MCT by 1 lousy inch it won't do diddly to the building. My guess is no, won't work, but it's worth a shot.

what you do is find out what part of the building the mct is on then drive right next to it... or practice driving into buildings... or... even easier... instead of using a vehicle.. plant the c4s on you partner... then have them go into a building... or into a vehicle then into a building... though i think that the c4s will dissappear if you enter a vehicle... not surew though... the agt/obelisk would probably be easiest to take out with your tactic...
