When the Aircraft are released, itll be easy to stop those rushes, cause the falme tanks range is so short it cant reach the orca, so 3 orcas might be able to stop a whole rush in a few seconds!And most of the time there isnt any support at all, cause everyones bought a FT not any other vhecile.So now FT rushes will probably used less often.

quote:what are the ranges of the orca's weapons that's a good question. i'd like to know that one myself.while we're on the subject of orcas, this will open up a new way of killing with the stealth. they aren't heavily armored, so the stealth now has a new target to kill. maybe that will make those that feel the stealth is worthless happy. lol...

Most flame rushes i see come right at the start when people get there first 800 bucks, so you wont even be able to get planes by then. But after that planes will be a factor in considering when to flame rush and i suppose that brining along some black hands or maybe an apache might help with this.

i've heard from the beta forum that the range if the orca/apache machine gun is long enough to reach from the celing hight to the ground! have no idea about the missiles though!

I'd expect the chain gun on the helis will be the same as the officer's, and the rockets the same as the Stealth tank, increasing with height perhaps?

Well, if they wanted the game to be realistic then there is no reason why the ORCAS can't sit at their maximum altitude, outside the range of the other players and rain death on them.

I heard that rockets had a quite shorter range so that you would have to get closer when trying to take out tanks or buildings with them.... Dont know the exact range though...

It's been said over and over and over again that the Obelisk WILL fire at airborne vehicles.
