I know theres seye? renhawk? and a few more well I might be wrong and lost but I think theres a few of these small type programs going around where you load the ssgm game log file and shows you what happen in that match my question is which is the best working one (i think seye is) and where could I download it?

Can you give a download link and some insight on how to use this? So it watches the server in real time?

It hasn't been released yet, and hence there is no way of downloading it right now.

Why would you need a GameLog reading one, instead of one that just connects to the fds?

I thought there was only the one that reads game logs after searching seye in the search engine in these fourms, roshambo did release one version but all links are dead....anyone at all will do fine

SEye is the only actively-developed well-known project like what you're talking about. It's currently in beta stage on two servers. [one live and one test]
