what a heartbreak to think you've got a winning rush on the way only to find out it's the other way around. but that's what makes the game so fun. you never know what's gonna hit ya!(at least when none of your homies give you a waazuuuuup! lol...)

Was playing hourglass yesterday - the teams were rocking -- punch - counter punch.at around 15 minutes or so in - GDI (My team) organize a rush - two mamies to go left and two mlrs to go to the right - engie support - etc...me and another dude stayed back for base defense. He was a tech and i had the PIC.mines were laid and we just relaxed.Started to hear about the battle on the chat and it seemed to be going well -- but there was only one call on the obi being attacked. curious i thought....but then i noticed that my team mates seemed to be getting creamed....then it got really quiet -- no one was saying thing. - spooky -- i type in a WTF0? and just as i hit the enter key - five flame tanks crested over the top --- I was in shock - no one said a thing and here come the frigging FT's ----i sent a enemy sighted - and commence to atack --- the tech was repairing the agt -- but then a Nod buggy rip over and cut me half.needless to say - we lost.so the moral of this story --- if you see something -- please tell your team so we can better protect the base..... or lay down and die.....
