I propose that TT should (if possible) change the registry settings that control where the webpage buttons direct you to. It would be much more convenient to have the "new account" button open up to instructions for how to create/delete/reset a password for an XWIS account, or something like that.

On a somewhat related note (or not ), is it possible to create a Renegade autoupdater with the patch, so you guys can release further patches that the game automatically detects and downloads and installs?

That could be quite a good thing, IMO.

I checked the sticky and the only line that you could be referring you was this:
"automatic downloading of maps and other content"

But I thought that means stuff like skins and models.

Still, good to hear you're planning to do it.
