Just a suggestion: Release the anti-cheat and the auto patch downloader first.

That way the renegade community can enjoy a cheat free game and u guys will have all the time to work on fixing bugs.

Neh they are doing just fine in my opinion

And besides that the bug fixes are the most important. I could wait longer for the Downloader and Anti-Cheat than for the bug fixes

And also let the cheaters have some time to say goodbye to cheating xD

PS. No i don't cheat!!! (don't even have custom skins )

if you think fixing dumbass bugs rather then 'curing' this cheat infested game, then you are a first class retard.

Don't know where the f**k you play but i never walked into a cheater in all the time i play Renegade
Also i wouldn't annoy me about cheaters since i never met one ingame. This is why i care more about the bugs because this is all i walk into if i do!

EDIT: And now lets get back on topic!
EDIT2: Hope you now understand my choice.

Protip: It's been said before that the anti-cheat/ingame downloader/every other feature are so intrinsically connected with each other that even *attempting* to separate one or two features from the rest would cause us to spend ~5 times as much time trying to work around bugs/inconsistencies caused by said separation than actually finishing *everything* up. Also, we don't devote 100% of our developer power at one feature at any one time (nor should we as we each have our own areas of expertise). This means that while some developers are working on fixing bugs, others are working on speeding up the game, and others are working on the anti-cheat/etc. So therefore, it is entirely useless to provide or even speculate on suggestions to improving our internal process, which, get this, is internal meaning that you actually have no idea what's actually happening with it *at all*.

And i agree with what Saberhawk said. Just suply it all in one.
Sure that saves more time than seperating stuff.

You shouldn't really suggest something when you don't know the details. It's better to post it as an idea or ask why we do not do it that way. I agree that Saberhawk's reply was a bit harsh though.

the map downloader is the only thing I'm awaiting eagerly.

the game is really becoming boring with the few f... standard maps played on the big servers.
