Actually, its not a scam/Joke, One of my friends has this pack(most of what the eBay seller is saying is true), i think you had to have a buddy that works for EA/WW to get one.

I believe this is one of the few questions I can answer about Generals.

On the Westwood website, you see Generals as one of your options. Click on it, and it takes you to the official site. On the lower-left hand corner, you see a fading sign, indicating the Officers Club.

This is a small segment from the archived news on Generals:

Quote: 2.11.2003

Welcome General. Congratulations on your admittance into the General Officers Club. As a member of this elite association you are entitled to all of the rights and privileges of its members. Click here to register you Officers Club secret code you received when you pre-ordered the game at participating retailers.

Obviously, some fool is simply selling the Officers Pack that the very first people who pre-ordered the game can receive. I don't really have much info on this club, but at least it clears the mystery on what it is.
