He's not spreading warez, thus he's not breaking rules. [could be wrong, tired -- always blame it on being tired!! #1 rule!]

-XCC Mixer Or RenEx (Extract Skins From Always.dat)
-Photoshop Or Gimp Or Paint.exe (Edit Skins)
-Photoshop DDS Plugin (To Run .dds Files On Photoshop)
-W3D Viewer (See Where Skins Files Are On Which Model (I Think?)

 The GIMP
 GIMP dds plugin
 XCC mixer

If you know how to use the three panes of XCC it's an invaluable tool.

Not if I feed my family by writing software it isn't!

(I don't myself, but I'm getting the point across)

Please do not encourage the illegal ownership of software.

If you cannot afford PhotoShop try "The GIMP" or similar FREE software. ("FREE" meaning distributed for no cost, not acquired for no cost, contrary to the terms of the license under which the writers intended it to be distributed)

Thank you.

900 $ for a software package isn't necessarily a lot. has it ever come to your minds that there's countless hours of programming involved in developing software? Those hours need to be paid, easily at 50 $ per hour.

Photoshop aims for a professional public, not people who want to make some (often ugly - no offense, don't take it personal) skins in their free time. These people don't need Photoshop either: there's enough free or cheap alternatives for them.
