I'll probably get it (somehow) and play the single player. But I found CoD4's multiplayer kinda 'wish-washy.'

I don't like the game's terrain and emitter graphics.

I agree, COD4's multiplayer usually boiled down to "who can spam more grenades?". However, the campaign was excellent.

it's just the opposite for me. i love the multiplayer, and the campaign was good, but way too short.

The multiplayer suckes on the consoles, but is epic on PC.

Yeah, Renegade is the best!

I never played any of the COD games on-line, but then I also don't know if they can beat Battlefield Bad Company on-line which was lots of fun despite being stripped down.

Battlefield Bad Company 2 Rules! Out probably by the end of this year!

Updated with a screen shot of a page in Game Informer. I might go pick this issue up.

CoD multiplayer in general sucks, for every CoD game. Their singleplayers are very well done though.

I feel exactly the opposite, the game feels way too easy for serious clangaming, but its nice for the occasional private lan and some pubfun.

Agreed. COD4 was a great game, but for me, it got boring after like, 5 days, and I just went back to Renegade.

MP is alright, but it's most fun on the pc or when there are alot of little kids playing it.... I think that works for every game though
