

---

Subject: Cash for Clunkers

Posted by Muad Dib15 on Tue, 19 May 2009 20:33:58 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

<http://wot.motortrend.com/6544352/auto-news/clunkers-scrapped-for-nissan-gt-rs-in-uk-not-quite-what-lawmakers-had-in-mind/index.html>

My response is already on there.

---

---

Subject: Re: Cash for Clunkers

Posted by nikki6ixx on Tue, 19 May 2009 22:15:58 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

The Nissan is still way more efficient, and better for the environment than the old n' shitty cars that would've been sent to the crusher. If people want to use their old car as credit to a new one, it should be one of their choice anyways, be it a GT-R, Corvette, or a Prius.

---

---

Subject: Re: Cash for Clunkers

Posted by Goztow on Wed, 20 May 2009 06:47:39 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

The premium they'll get will be a very small % of the 81.000 $ it costs, of course. It's hard to draw a line, really, in this kind of problems.

---

---

Subject: Re: Cash for Clunkers

Posted by Spoony on Wed, 20 May 2009 13:59:35 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

don't go believing that the scrappage deal has anything to do with environmental concerns...

---

---

Subject: Re: Cash for Clunkers

Posted by Ethenal on Wed, 20 May 2009 14:11:48 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

lol, it's not like many people could trade in their car for enough to even come close to paying for a GT-R. But at least the GT-R is awesome.

---

---

Subject: Re: Cash for Clunkers

Posted by luv2pb on Wed, 20 May 2009 18:48:58 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

That makes me smile. Also, they didn't say what the clunkers were so it is possible that they did get more effecient cars.

---