

---

Subject: Contrary to cheesish beleif there are tactics
Posted by Anonymous on Wed, 17 Apr 2002 20:03:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Ok to start off. The first few hours the patch was out all people baught were aircraft. Now that people got the need to fly them outa their system we start seeing tanks returning. Now this means that the much feared flame rush now has air support. Aircraft can't take out a base by theirselves. they are better used as support vehicls and thats what the US military does now, aircraft are support never dirrect assult. On city we had 3 flames and a 3 Apaches, this that worked very well.

---

---

Subject: Contrary to cheesish beleif there are tactics
Posted by Anonymous on Wed, 17 Apr 2002 20:55:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

MY fear is that 90\% of the game-playing audience of Renegade knows the destruction of their unit means points for the other team. An Apache/Orca is like a flying Stealth Tank - only 3 times weaker, NOT invisible, rather easy to draw a bead on with bullets, and pretty safe if you're on foot NOT to get killed by. Yet it's still worth 300 pts if you take one down. I expect to see a lot of n00b-heavy teams lose games strictly because they'll be feeding aircraft to defenses.

---