Nothing still ruins a great game like taking teammates tanks! Two more names on my list:USSRMDKDIRTYLEAFWe REALLY need a vote/kick option. Sure they can go change their logins, but at least it forces them to do something, and it would get them out of our hair for a little while. USSRMDK looks to be fairly new, and maybe he will be a better player soon - I hope.DIRTYLEAF has no excuse, his rank is high enough - apparently at others expense.Anyone have any good tips for preventing this? It sure slows things down when you have to hide from your "buddies" while repairing.See you all tomorrow!98% of lawyers give the rest a bad name.

i was doing a little playing to find out a good strategy and i found a way to get into enemy base without a vehicle and blow up the refinery! it is on city or city flying on Nod. Buy a technician and just hide behind the harvy! its that simple even though i have only seen one other person do it! i successfully destroyed their refinery and made it back to base!

Works on many maps on many buildings, although a stealth soldier is ideal.

When someone steals my unit I always cover them in proxy mines. It is my personal vendetta to get even with them! P.S.DRS use to kickass!!!! [ April 24, 2002: Message edited by: CDRREMLAP ]

Once I had a beat up LT tank.A guy ran to get in it as I was repairing it. I got straight back in, he went into the Hand of Nod and stood near the window. I stepped a few steps away and he jumped out and ran to it. He had $723. I mean whats the point....The next map city he was on the opposite team and there was continual open chat about him stealing team vehicles and not playing the game.....

Aye. I was stopping apc rushes in Mesa, using an enemy apc I had stolen originally to cut off the entrance way to our base (gdi right side). Worked great, after 2 attempts I had to repair, no engies around so I quick head to the pp, jump out, grab and engy, back to the tank and start repairing. Now some n00b jumps in and runs by himself to the enemy base! His excuse was that I stole it first, bull****! It's still a teamjack and we lost because I had no tank to stop the next rush with!

On C&C_Under, I bought a Stealth tank and was holding off the GDI besiegers. I was involved in some heavy fighting and took some damage, so I ask the Tech next to me to fix it. "No" he tells me OK, wtf I hop out and repair it, but as soon as it was almost full he jumps in and charges a Mammoth head on Needless to say I was choked and my tank was toast. I don't let it bother me tho as I have 2700creds, so I buy 3 flame tanks and try to give 2 of them away, but no one takes em ! So I'm once again fighting on my own and once again get out for repairs... and that same friggin tech steals the tank I couldn't give away
