what is the solution of TT against the aimbots?

Because I think I found one.

make "aim color" always the same color. Simple and all external aimbots will be disabled.
Everyone will need to patch and use renguard so.

what do you think?

Make it, test it and release it.
If this does work that would be an awesome solution till TT is released no way, making it white on aim will get you confused about the range.

Your score can still tell you when you make a hit.

it would solve the aimbot problem.

I really want this fixed asap or in next TT patch. Is that possible?

We will do that for Reborn.

Renardin has a good point and a possible solution to trigger bots. Here's what could be done IMO to make the existing triggerbot useless and keep functionality. I didn't test if it works but judging on the clickbot readme, it would.

This would require a client side patch, though.

And then they change the aimbot to use the color 20px to the left/right up/down. No that's useful well the aimbot is from 2007, if nobody updates it, it would be ok then. Even as a temporary solution, it would be great already.

How about a semi-transparent crosshair?

If you target the enemy it will still turn red, but also blend in with the background color. That way you cannot have the same red color over and over. It would take a lot of time to create a proper aimbot for that.

This would indeed be a better solution. Still possible to create an clickbot for, but a lot harder than just filtering 1 pixel for 1 colour code.

No. Taking transparency into account really isn't very hard, and anyway triggerbots barely work in ren anyway due to slowness of firing/bullet velocity. As for actual aimbots, the only one is *cheat name removed*AFAIK and that one no longer works.

These triggerbots should only work well for sniping and close range infantry/vehicle battling. But for mid and far ranges they probably won't work anyway, because of the bullet/shell travel times.

Not really hard...

No but there is only 1 'advanced' cheat for ren. Just doing this would make old cheats obsolete any way.

Clickbot works quite well when using a sniper/pic/rave (and maybe pistolng?). Making the crosshair somewhat transparent would solve that issue. I wouldn't necessarily like the change in my crosshair, but if it weeds out clickbot users, I'm for it.

edit: though if there is a way to detect external mouse/keyboard usage and send it to the server that'd be awesome. (for example, if server gets a message about that every time that über enemy havoc kills someone the mods could ban the guy)

There are incredibly easy ways of bypassing a semi-transparent crosshair with the existing clickbots out there.

There also isn't a way of detecting "external mouse/keyboard usage".

We should just remove rendering altogether; if they can't see anything it becomes alot harder to write cheats that work via image processing!
