Give him lots and lots of sugary snacks, he'll be raving mad for a couple hours, but then burn himself out.

Put your hand over his mouth and hold him down so he can't move until he gets the idea.

He's crying because you are a sad person in real life who needs to cheat in an online multiplayer game to get the sense that you can actually do something.

Spanking him would be much more effective. He'd eventually shut up, and it isn't illegal. I'm sure if you slap him across the face enough, you could get charged with assault. Although, you're not his parent, so I don't know if spanking him as much as you want is ok, just make sure his parents are ok with it.

Was he freaking out because you were downloading cheats? That's normal. He just has a conscience. It's amazing a three year old knows cheating is bad and you've yet to show any remorse in all the thread this has been brought up in so far.

everyone in the house thinks if you download ANYTHING it equals a virus and thats what they taught the kid... funny how the person who knows the most about computers (me) is being planned to get kicked off and they expect me to help fix what i cant play... thats great...
