For providing a massive support into keeping the Renegade community alive, The KOSs2 community decided to make a donation towards renegadeforums.com .

It may seem "normal" for most of us but in our opinion, we shouldn't take this place for granted and a donation to help cover its running costs therefor seemed appropriate to us .

Merry christmas to renegadeforums.com .

My company raised several thousand dollars for charity this year and we've lined up even more events for next year, but if you want me to forward it on to charity, I'd be more than happy to. It's more about the appreciation for the money I spend on the community every month than the actual money.

renforums IS charity.
It gives a lot of people who have lost the light in their lives a place to whine and flame, that is a very precious gift!

When we donate money towards a cause we like it to go to that cause and not for it to be forwarded to another cause, though we obviously support charity.

nikki could eat surth in one sitting; your point is irrelevant

it is a kind gesture to donate towards this place

sure it's not the EA Official forums but who honestly would go there for Renegade? they didn't make it, they don't seem to care about it, so this is in all honesty the best place for the community to come together

Ignoring Surth's interesting habbits with cats, I am not amused by the amount of offtopic in this thread, and I will be sending a PM to Prulez.
