This is my HUD that I make for Renegade, WIP.
It was taken from old RenegadeX screenshots.
I also plan to add health indicators for buildings (icons and stuff).

Right now it is for my personal use.

It looks kick ass, but don't come here just to show it off. Also, don't come here to show off your Renegade X conversions, either.

depends on the pc. Shouldn't lag that much really, but porting vehicles to work online requires objects.ddb

Do you have permission from Renegade-X team?
Nice idea by the way.
You might want to lower down the size of the textures since renegade lags on high quality textures. The polygons in my opinion are fine.

You better not fucking think of releasing those, or you will be in for a world of hurt. You do not have permission to use content created by the renegade-x team, and you agreed to the terms stated in the installation of the mod forbidding you to use renegade-x content in anything other than renegade-x. What you're doing is illegal and unethical, and should you make the poor decision to release the content, suffice to say, you will regret it.

The Renegade X team has every right to make their mod. They have the green light from Electronic Arts. They also have a green light from Epic Games to make it standalone.

So I don't know what you're talking about.

The original renegade is always going to be the best, EA Games are stupid, they dont care about anything but making money. Westwood Took care in their games....

Renegade is old, i wouldnt think getting stuff from it would be that much of a bad thing but renegade-x is 100% alive these days, and it would be a bad idea to use its stuff iligaly.

Despite that, it's still pretty stupid that he ripped it from Renegade-X... I mean, the Renegade-X HUD is just a remade HUD from normal Renegade but higher res. He should've atleast made his own with his own perspective on it...

I don't care too much for the HUD, you need Rob's permission to use that. But everything else like the rifle and replaced vehicles you're using is all Renegade X property, and by agreeing to our NDA, releasing them without our permission is illegal.

I don't know why anyone would even want to put high-poly models like that in such an outdated game, graphics-wise that is. Doesn't really make much sense. I would just play Renegade X if I wanted to see the delicious models.

Maybe I have bad memory, but I do not remember saying anything about releasing the models, therefore, any message concerning them is offtopic. They are for personal use, so copyrightfags can shut up and go threaten someone else.

Yes this is true. A lot of fools who I won't name thought the mod would kill Renegade; little do they know that a mod will never be as successful as a retail game, especially one that is still sold today (in C&C packs).

But, people do play daily, and our player counts seem to go up with every release. A lot of people who either don't play Renegade or haven't played it in years are coming to our mod, and I think hold the majority of the fanbase.

Anyway, the real test will be to see Renegade X's playcount when our UDK version is released. It'll be fully standalone, so UT3 is no longer required. It'll also be a substantive update from the current version (0.5), both in gameplay, features, and visuals. And yes, this is happening - it'll probably take longer than our other released (we made 4 in 4 months), but by now I'm sure everyone knows the persistence of our team

Why someone would want to bog down Renegade with high-poly vehicle models that don't let you play online is beyond me...

Also, quick question to RenX devs... since you released the editor and the source code, does the 'no releasing Renegade X content' rule still apply?
