Well the author states that he had written this in the 60's that this was going to happen in the near future. It kind of follows a dystopia and it is kind of like big brother, like in the book '1984'. So my dicussion point is which is better: A society based on free will or A society based on the goverment limiting the power of the people. (For better or for worse) Also in which ever case you pick where do we draw the line?
