what do you do?i usually wait to steal a vehicle... while killing people respawning... for some reason, people think that leaving their vehicles at their base is safe ... and for some other reason the opposing engys think that if their own vehicles are in their base, that they should repair it... go figure

If it was an incredibly valuable structure, like the PP in _City, I walk out and martyr myself rather than have to waste time in walking back to base....so technically I seek out the deadliest foe I can find and kick him in a shins a few times and he usually is nice enough to give me a free ticket back to my base.Now, if I'm a 'wire/Tech, I usually ensure two future kills by putting three mines at each of the entrances of the building I killed - except on maps where the mines are incredibly vital to structure defense.

2 Things I like to do are:1) Press F2 and say "I am in your base come and kill me if you are good enough" and then wave my repair gun in the aire so they can see me2) After blowing up there power plant I like to leave and steal the nice shiny new Med tank that the enemy has "kindly" got out of to chase me into the PP then go take the Mammoth tank and do some damage befor stealing the Humm-Vee and making a run for it back to base..... well I have only ever made it as far as stealing the Med tank

Some people are wonderfull when they re in the opposing team :On mesa, we destroyed as Nod the AGT after a good apc rush. Then i came back with the well known combo steathBH/nuke, headed for the barracks and planted the nuke.Then i saw an engy, not a hotwire, but an engy repairing himself a mammoth !!!!! Even now i can't understand this !!! Repairing himself a mammoth with an engy is a waste of time !!! Why he didn 't ask to the teammates hotwires ??? And repairing a vehicle alone, espececially a powerfull one, when AGT is destroyed is a call to murder !!! Yes, you know what i did. That's obvious. I stole his mammoth (thx for repairing at 75%) and protect my nuke with, while shooting at the same time at the ref.... [May 19, 2002: Message edited by: n00by One Ken00by]

Like someone else (Cannot remember name) If I'm a hottie, I go to the middle of the base in City and wave my repair gun and give them the old Single fingered salute

If the APC is still there and not stolen (we usually have one guy stay in until the rest return) then we get in and try to hitch a ride back home. Better than giving it to the nme. Sometimes we even make it back. It feels great to blow their power plant, and still manage to salvage the APC used during the infiltration and make it back home.

I've finished off a flame tank and a building with it when it was the only thing I had left to use. I was in a tank as an eng and almost destroyed a flame tank but my tank fell apart just before I could get the last shot in. Seeing that there was barely any red left of the flame's health, I ran after it firing my pistol.. BOOM.. no more flame tank. With the building, I had just laid C4 but some engines repaired the building slightly before my last C4 went off so the building had a tiny sliver left(not even visible). I stood firing at the MCT for 4 clips worth of shots and it actually blew up. So it does do damage even if it's very very little.

I like killing people with a sniper when they are at the PT buying a stealth, then a beacon. Very funny to hear what the enemy says when you kill them

Oooh, that pistol! my favorite weapon(jk, I like sniping). Anyways, I was on _City_Flying and their AGT got blown up by an early APC rush (they mined the PP and we attacked the AGT instead, heh heh little buggers). I wasn't involved in the AGT rush, but me and a friend hopped in a buggy, and I jumped out only to run onto the roof of the war factory, beacon in hand. I put the lon in my secret place and hid in my other secret place untill the fireworks ended. Out I jumped, and seeing how I had no more C4, and I was an engy, I pulled out my pistol and proceeded to fire upon the 1,000 units coming out of the barracks. Yep, I had quite a few kills and a LOT of points, untill an Apache came out from the corner! Yeah, he could distract them while I made a run for it!! looked at the Apache once more, and a green name appeared above it. The GDI had stolen one of ours, and shot rockets at various areas to apparently celebrate his steal. I was fortunate enough to be struck by one of said rockets, and with all the money I got from the kills, I got an Apache, a Black Hand Sniper and a beacon, set the beacon on the roof of the barracks (My team had blown up all the other buildings by now, PP and Tib Ref), and went up to the left tower building thing and sniped the engys trying to disarm it. Of course I blew up my Apache so as not to draw attention to the tower, and the Beacon struck without any problems whatsoever. Hurrah! That was my story.

plant whatever prox c4 is left on a hard-to-see, yet vital area(right over a door), and wait for some poor dolt to walk in the door...boink! Best placement for mines you can use...and all it takes is one! or, If I'm a standard engie, I hide just inside the door until I see a nice juicy tank, then run like hell for it, getting killed on the way by the SBH that was waiting for me to do just that.

I blow up buildings, usually I never make it out of said destroyed building alive...that seems to be something I'll have to work on.
