N00bs aren't interested in finding out how to play the game properly, and could have played it since it came out. Newbs are people who have only just started playing and want to find out information and tactics so they become better. You n b

For a being a "senior" in HS you are suprisingly immature silentson. Besides, I'll use several arguments against your "n00b" (or however its spelled). Registration date. Registered a month before you. Lower member number. More posts. While these are irrational ways to demonstrate anything, your kind likes to use these things to justify calling others "n00bs". So, why not correct yourself silentson? Trying to be by saying a phrase does not work here. Back to topic: I'm thinking that the Auto Pistol has a higher damage multiplier to the head. I remember somewhere a person stating that three headshots would kill a freebie; and I have bad memories of how little stopping power a auto pistol has going into a freebies chest or legs. a n00b just does, thinking they know everything. And even if they know they don't, then they just ignore the advice. In other words, a not-so-good player who refuses to learn. A newb realizes that they do NOT know everything, and asks questions to see what they are doing wrong. In other words, a player who is not so good, but is able to learn, and thus be better.
