At the WOL log in screen make up a new name (min 3 characters, max 9) and make up a password that is 8 characters. If you do not get a list of servers try a different name as the one you just tried was probably already taken.

Make sure your password is exactly 8 characters long.

YEp. your right on that one... new problem.. servers are not showing up.. and another question.. i said i wanted to login in as this name everytime.. that was a lie.. i want to do a different name.. i remembered my old name, but i think something messed up with the password and that might be the problem for why the servers are not showing up. Thank you!

Go to the sidebar, you have to scroll over it I think. Should be options and that box about logging in everytime.

If nothing shows up on the server list when you try to make a new name, that means the name is already taken and the password you tyoed in is obviously not the one the original person used. So keep trying till you find a name and password combo that works.

You should have 1.037, that's the latest patch number. And there are still many servers active, so there is bound to be some sniper servers.

Also, I forgot to mention, there is a dedicated section of this forum to solving issues with the game.

Go here and you might get all the answers you need:

Buy the game again, or if you have a RA2 or Tiberian Sun serial, I think that should work.

Renegade's multiplayer is one of a kind! With an online system so easy to use, I'm astounded hundreds of new players don't pick up Command and Conquer: Renegade each month!

The answer to all your questions could have been easily found in the stickies in this subforum:

Welcome back to Renegade . If you'd like it, I still have about 10 new copies of Renegade laying around. I could sell you an unused, valid serial for 5 €. Or you could go and buy it at amazon.com or other webstores for the same prize.
