We want to start a new website for MP-Gaming to do with Counter Strike Source.
Now i went through a dozen websites with both free and paid templates but i can't really find anything nice.

I was wondering if there are any people here who know how to design a website properly.

I am willing to pay you ~$50-$100 on Paypal if you create us a website which we can use on the new domain.

But it must be something very nice. I would suggest you first create a design in Photoshop and show a screenshot of how you intend the design to be. It should have two unique pages: The homepage and a page for random content such as a disclaimer.

Let me know if you are interested.

cheesesoda/jball is quiet good at building websites and has done so in the past making good sites. Pretty sure he is available for the job. Though he no longer posts here, he is active in his site. Here's his contact info (from his site):

AIM: reydelaguerra

MSN: jake@cheesesoda.com

Yahoo!: j_ball430

Skype: cheesesoda

It would be great if you could get something going...he may be able to help you out.

wish you the best...

It's not that bad for a non professional web designer, being paid in the pocket (so no taxes and other shit). Sure it won't get you any professional but i don't think he wants this.

I;m not very demanding, i like a template fast and i don't really have high standards...

If it looks like css and has an acceptable layout and banner/logo i'm happy.

Found someone willing to do it btw.
