Which person do you hold the most regard for in the renegade community, the person you most respect and admire? It could be a person past or present, and for any reason that you believe to be valid.

Perhaps an awesome player, or a server owner that hosts your favourite FDS?

I had a rough idea of a short list in my head when I was creating this thread of who I would choose myself. However, that list started to dwindle when I recalled some of their other activities related to renegade.

I narrowed it down to:

jnz

WhiteDragon

Zunnie

vloktboky

Dante

StealthEye

SaberHawk

JonWil

Mac

Crimson

Olaf

Yrr

GhostShaw

Hex

It's pretty obvious that for me, that the people I most respect and admire, are the coders and people that have in my opinion contributed the most to the renegade community, and not got up to any other shitty behaviour.

When I started to try and define the value of what they have contributed I struggled. There's literal monetary value in most cases, then the value of code, projects, software and other releases.

If pushed, I would have to go with Vloktboky, followed closely by WhiteDragon. Those guys were ahead of the rest by light years at the time, and freely released their work to the community. The effect they had still has ripples till this day, and I believe they made the biggest positive impact. Not only did their releases do so much good for the community, their ethos inspired others and they truly left a legacy.

There's others I respect of course, but those are the most prominent.

azazel: for being one of the most fukin funny cheaters in the history of this game. I dont really recall someone who has made me topple off my chair harder. Even just the act of being caught while afk with a triggerbot, but history of bans, accusations, hypocrisy and LOL. gets back up on chair

0x90: for providing mods the ability to catch cheaters that are beyond retarded. (seriously tho for being the only one to release a serious cheat. All the other rene cheats are just playful toys compared to what he can do)

nikki: epic bumpage and awesomeness goztow: obvious reasons, a legend coders for rene: plenty of em keeping shit going hex: coz he loves me jelly: for keeping arguably the strongest communtiy going, in terms of population anthrax: special mention coz no one else is this fukin funny arnyswart: pays for what i enjoy. Alot.

all the awesome guys and girls that i hang out with, talk to regulary on ts day in and day out, laugh around with on irc and who i plan to visit when i leave the land down under in 3 weeks

There's a lot of really cool people I've met through Ren. Too much to sum up... But there's only few I met and got befriended with in real life, Refue11er (and his family), Wiener and LtDeetee being prime examples.

It's hard to make a pick in all the others. I'll name Danpaul, Stealtheye and Ghostshaw for being the most gifted coders I've got to know kind of well on Renegade, though I'll admit not meeting that many . Reborn as a good coder and the most big hearted guy on Renegade (he's basically begging people to come to him when they need help, hardly ever seen that before!).

CarrierII of course, for having the courage to continue a never ending job I started: making renforums a tadbit less retarded .

Then there's the many remaining community admins... I know what it takes to keep a community going and one needs to admire that, even though I don't always agree iwth their decisions on a personal level. Crimson should certainly be named.

All wonderful long time members of TK2, as they provide a warm community for everyone .

Some people I only heard of but whose acts have spoken for them, like Whitedragon, Zunnie and the likes.

Well, there's many, many more I'm afraid. I might add people if I think of them and excuse me in advance if I haven't thought of you right now .

Edit: forgot about Spooky... Would love to have a live debate with him!

If we can pick ourselves, I pick me for being the guy that first started custom code for renegade.

I would also pick WD and Vloktboky (not because of their non-existent coding skills but because they were the first to deliver server side mods that delivered features previously never thought possible)

And Saberhawk (who knows more about Direct3D and shaders and graphics as applied to renegade than anyone and wrote most of the graphics code in the scripts.dll)

And StealthEye (who is a netcode guru and made improvements to the netcode in 4.0)

Plus the other coders (Ghostshaw and Sir_Kane specifically) for their contributions to scripts 4.0

Danpaul too for his work on brenbot and on scripting for RA2:AR

I was not confused about why he was on the list, but rather the comment about non-existent coding skills.

I am sure I have misinterpreted what he meant.

Reborn, what is with the questions? Are we allowed to post why we didn't select a person?

Crimson: Has organised and hosted more for this game than every one else combined jonwil: Coded more with his pinky toe than most even dreamed about mac: Was a pioneer in renegade development

stealtheye: New generation mac

0x90: Helped more people fix their RG than all of BHS total

Goztow: Keeps this hell hole running

Danpaul: BR rocks

djlaptop: Lets face it the guy made renegade a whole new level of fun

PS I can't wait till the day jnz's true colors come out

I was joking

I believe it's a double negative. "Not" because of their "non"existent coding skills. I.e Not only because of their coding skills, they were also the first to deliver server side mods. I think thats what he meant.

I think its unfair to compare some of the old legends on the list, to the current people doing great work.

But basically, if taking into the account the entire history of this game nobody has done more than Crimson and jonwil. Without either of them, none of us would be here (or atleast not have gotten as far as we have) and they really paved the way for all future developments/releases....

ps: im surprised you forgot to add djlaptop on that list, he was also a key (oldie) player
