Honestly I really don't get what the appeal is, takes so much time that could be spent so much more productively.

Anyone play it and know what it is that actually attracts them to it.

MineCraft's graphics are a surprisingly nice break from the brown and bloom of modern vidya.

It has that sorta classic, cartoony feel games are supposed to have. Yeah, it's a sort of poor excuse for poor graphics, but it's not that bad when you get into it.

Anyways, the reason why people like it is because it's a completely randomly generated world with virtually infinite size (Technically not infinite, but 8x the size of Earth).

Plus, you can pretty much build whatever you want. Yeah, it takes some time, but that's kind of what a sandbox game is supposed to be. Ultimately, that's what videogames are, anyways.

And if you don't think it's exciting, go cave exploring with nothing more than some torches, some ladders, and a sword. Or maybe not even the sword.

...also pretty much all the fun comes from the actual bought version, Classic is crap.

lol'd

It's basically a sandbox game where the world is made up of blocks. See a block? You can remove it, pick it up, and place it somewhere else.

In Classic mode, you're given unlimited blocks, and can place 'em wherever as many times as you want. It's basically playing Lego with an infinite tub of pieces. Not really fun at all, but interesting.

Then you have the current beta mode (which costs a small amount of money, definitely worth it)- which is constantly (more like monthly at best lolol) being added onto. You start off with nothing, and have to make tools by breaking down trees and such and turning them into wooden tools (like a pickaxe) to destroy (or "mine") blocks and yield you the block you just destroyed. You can either place that block, or use it as a crafting material (sometimes, not every block can be used to be crafted into something- IE: dirt)- so you can chop down some wood to get some logs, then through a series of crafting stuff into other stuff you can make a wooden pickaxe to mine stone- and from there, well, it's basically up to you.

Oh yeah also there's zombies, skeleton archers, and these green fuckers that are completely silent until they're right next to you, going "SSSSSSsssssSSSSs" and explode, damn near (if not outright) killing you and destroying a shitton of things around you.

Fuck creepers.

PS: The world is randomly generated and practically infinite. Just throwing that out there again.

Cave exploring by yourself can be pretty terrifying, especially considering the utter desolation.

But yeah, building a whole town by yourself in singleplayer is kinda weird. But eh, to each his own.

For me, it's having a nifty sandbox-type world to screw around in.

And a world where the player isn't infallible, which means effort is required.

Well, let's see:

HaTe wrote on Fri, 22 April 2011 18:56"Ren has 10x better graphics than minecraft"

CLEARLY wrong, even with default Minecraft graphics which can easily be enhanced to the point that they're BETTER than Ren's.

HaTe wrote on Fri, 22 April 2011 18:56 "I love how you guys are so fucking emotional about a little kids video game. It's real cute."

It's called "calling your bluff," actually. Know the definition of it?

Just because it's "just a game and not an actual issue" doesn't mean we have to look stupid defending it. Like pointsfix debate or "WHICH SERVER IS BETTER LOLZ".

This man is like a phycsic bet taker. I think he should be punished for his awful sins. I've been trolling on this page, but the other page was completely serious...minecraft is a joke.

also MineCraft is fun as hell to play with a group of other friends especially if you have a terrain generation mod, make it so almost everything is underwater and you spawn on an island

The person who either is on the internet enough to come across that picture, or searches for it shouldn't be posting it as an insult. It's in insult to the person posting it honestly. Whoever does clearly needs more sun.

well, Glock was kind of being a faggot with that, but you got most of your answer I think people who like it: have various reasons, they mostly like it because it's just plain fun and is a nice sandbox game people who dislike it: end up resorting to "lol I'm just trolling you guys OWNED"

so yeah

I saw it more like this:

People who like it: It's fun because I have nothing better to do in my spare time. I'm now going to attempt to insult anyone who dislikes it via funny insulting pictures that I am now googling.

People who dislike it: It's a lego rip-off with no gameplay whatsoever.

so yeah

I myself don't really see what the appeal of this game is either.

But people will always find different things enjoyable so I wouldn't resort to insulting people who do play it.

Minecraft graphics really aren't that bad. If you download a HD texture pack with HD letters (256x256, or 178x178), the graphics are fairly decent.

The thing that draws me to MineCraft is just to keep building & building & building. Imo, its alot more fun to play online with others players and show off your creation with them.

Ok decided to download this and at least try to see what other people see.

I can see why it would become addictive if playing with friends but alone would become a little bit annoying.

This is me and my two wolves I just found. Luckily I had some bones on me to tame them. I'm currently trying to find a snow biome. I forgot why, though.

Look at how much fun I'm having.

Sorry in advance if you made that video. But why on earth is that person narrating so slow in his speech? I almost wanted to slit my wrists listening to it! It just put a bad subliminal vibe towards Minecraft in my mind. I may never give it a chance!

By the way, a new game has grabbed my attention - Terraria.

Think Minecraft, but 2d, and with a LOT more content (tons of mobs and weapons, also shops and whatnot)

(Also a LAN multiplayer that doesn't suck)

It's not like my time would have been any more productive had I chosen to play a different game.

I hate minecraft, the creator ripped off a mod called Infiniminer (or one of the other mods like it) and then became a millionaire before it has even made its first release. The game itself is pretty half assed, most of the new features are being made by the mod community before the creator adds them in to the actual game.

But whatever, I guess sometimes you make a pile of shit and everyone loves it and you get rich for it.

He was just lucky no one saw the free Infiniminer mod (or standalone mods like) or else his java shit game wouldn't have made a dollar (well it would have, but not a million for sure).

Notch really was a visionary- more and more developers these days are releasing shitty, unfinished, buggy games and expect their fans to fix it! Sure enough, legions of autistic people are eager to fix up all of their careless and lazy mistakes! Sometimes I'm ready to just give up on video games all together.
