Yes - not many use it - but it prevents you from moving your hands off the keyboard - mousewww.gamecommander.comI have gamecommander2 and running on XP Pro - and it increases my speed in game 200%.I can give out the voice commands the radio calls and still move and aim with the k/m.i can also select any of the weapons i have - change views - select beacons/mines - reload - with out taking my hands off the movement keys.it works - and i have the sound volume high - and it doesnt affect the recognition of the commands.Plus you can use it with roger wilco and other voice chat programs.This little strat will help you in Renegade -- trust me.. Hmmm -This program doesnt interact with Renegade - it just responds to your voice and send keystokes --Lag - as you call it - may be because your rig is underpowered -I run smooth as silk on 40+ servers - with all these little programs running --i would suggest you upgrade your hardware.I was even running it on a 56K link (before i got my 1.5 meg cable connection) - and it was still smooth. Granted - i hyper-jumped sometimes - but i knew it was my connection- once i upgraded - problem went away.Remember - this is a client/server program - there are a ton of factors that would cause a lag -- low memory - slow computer - bad connection - slow hard drives - bad drivers - bad servers - bad internet connections - the list goes on and on...but it seems to me that the client plays a big part of it for this game...IMHO [July 29, 2002, 13:43: Message edited by: StoneRook]

hmm its ashame cuz ALL voice recognition programs take up huge amounts of RAM.....even if you have 528 mb ram its still a guarentee that your going to lag when playing Renegade.....let alone any other game.....but I bet its cool.....um yah cya later.
