I reinstalled my OS yesterday, set up Renegade, and tried to login. OSTKshai/OSTK were the nicks I tried. What it does is the name field can be filled out, but the password field cannot (on those two nicks it's greyed out, the one time I could put something in there, it said it was a bad password). I know the nicks aren't deleted, I was just using them a few days ago on Xwis. 0.o

I've tried the xwis.net/cp to reset them, I've tried the old chat lobby reset, and I just now tried the xwisc one...to no avail.

When I reinstalled my OS those two names were on the list for some reason, and I had westwood already in my registry (the new OS didn't delete the westwood folder nor the registry (and yes I manually deleted the folders and the registry before installing renegade this last time)).

Using the pass the xwis.net/cp gave me, there's nowhere I can put it now...

Nicks on that serial:

Ok weird...I gave the xwis/cp generated pass to a friend, and he was able to login just fine. Is there anything I can delete on my pc to get rid of that 'forced greyed out box on OSTKshai'...some dll or something.

<edit #4>

Something on my pc is keeping this false password on here, 4th install of Renegade just now and it's doing it again. As soon as I type in OSTKshai, the password field is full and greyed out.

When you enter that nickname in the login box, click the Delete Account button. That should remove the records client side but won't remove anything on XWIS.

I just did that right before I read this. I was a lil freaked at hitting that button previously..figured it'd delete my names(got mad enough to do it though). woohooo
Dear lord, I spent the better part of 3 hours fucking with this renegade...bah!
