hehe are u proud of speaking only english huh?? stop ing at people who don't speak english well. we from other countries must speak english because you guys are to lazy to learn one ing other language . so instead of making fun of him you should think: hey that guy has learned for 3 years on school to speak english and now he is trying to make a massages. that is nice that he spend 3 years on school to learn our language. we can't speak any dutch/frence/german word and he is able to make a massage in our language. so the conclusion is that he is smarter then you guys are stelletje zeikers ohh by the way about your topic. yeah it is cheating and i know how to do it. you buy a mrls and you shoot at the ground under an angle of 87 degrees and then you blow up your mrls and you punch yourself and then you say to yourself: i will never try to cheat again

Umm cough cough dont flame me but, If its our country shouldn't you learn our language? If we go to France we dont ectpect them to learn English for us. We learn French. Just my two cents. Besides, I mess up if I type too fast, so I'm going really slowly.

I am also multilingual. The old " Americans speak only english " BS does not apply. When I was in France, I spoke French, when in Spain, spanish. When in America, English.

It's not that unfortunate. Really it isn't. It's a much more guttural sounding language. I know they all are based in the latin, but French is a more flowing, gentle language than say, German, or Spanish.

Its not the fact you are foreign its how you behave and present yourself. I give a break to those who are less than proficient than I in english. But; those who are, and to lazy, and want to communicate intelligently screw 'em. That I speak many languages doesn't make any smarter than the next guy; it's how I present what I know.

I think it is neither american nor japanese nor russian etc. Ok, english is the language that a lot of peoplespeak (not as much as chinese/mandarin though) but ok we all try to get the communication going by learning english and writing it in places like this. So u should be a little generous concerning mistakes. But the point of this was ack complaining about the abbreviated internet typing language - it was no "bad english", it was just the way most people write in message boards 2 save time (including me) - if it wouldn't be exaggerated, it is ok 2 me though. Some people seem 2 have the time 2 even run a spelling program over their messages - others don't because they have more valuable things to do - it's up to each individual imho.

ehh.. you are trying to say that i am on special education?? if i understand wrong correct me but i am not at special education. special education means in dutch that you have troubles with learning and that you go to a special school. My education is the highest grade possible in hollandso don't say that i am on special education. again if you mean something else correct me please.

Well, not really, American doesn't have its own personal language, they do however have their own form of an existing language (Some words have a different meaning or are spelled different). Just like in Canada, we don't speak Canadian, we speak Canadian English, and in Britain you speak Old English (Is that right?).
