Apparently Jerad enjoys having insurance companies tell you that your claims are denied for trivial reasons, leaving you to fend for yourself. That, or he doesn't work or is too young to worry about insurance since his parents have him covered until he's 26... Thanks to Obamacare.

Also, you need to look up "sovereign debt" and "fiat currency" before you post about "money we don't have."

That's actually exactly what I did. I voted for the one with the history of having a swaying opinion. My train of thought being that if he was ever to face something controversial, such as SOPA (granted Romney actually did not support SOPA, this is merely an example), then a large influx of mass opinion would be more effective to sway his decisions.

Also because Obamacare scares the crap outta me.

I don't think any of the idiots that approve of Obamacare understand how it works .. LMFAO.

My parents own a company and would be required to pay for insurance for all their employees, taxes would be raised astoundingly, and every person in the USA would be required to pay for health insurance. It's not as great as you out of country people seem to believe it is .. ? I know if my parents are supposed to pay for everyone in their company in this shit ass economy they might as well declare bankruptcy right now. Did I mention that almost no insurance providers would cover the costs of their patients anymore and they would lose all business? Anyone that works in a healthcare profession is royally fucked if Obamacare passes. Fuck Obama, worst thing to ever happen to the working people of this country.

The amount of uninformed / retarded Obama supporters is astounding, atleast all those minorities that don't understand anything and are extremely poor got their votes in! Good thing Obama made sure that the military absentee ballots that would have swayed the vote in Romney's favor arrived late as well and weren't counted. Good job.

How fascinating. You've managed to tell people "how" the law works while simultaneously not knowing how it works, yourself.

http://www.nytimes.com/2012/07/16/opinion/keller-five-obamacare-myths.html?pagewanted=all&_r=0

There goes the "job killing" part. I also love the part where you say we're all required to get insurance. We're not all required to get insurance.

Quote:But the CBO estimates that, of the 30 million U.S. residents it expects to be uninsured in 2016, 18 to 19 million are exempt from the mandate. There are around 10-12 million illegal immigrants in the U.S., and illegal immigrants are exempted from the mandate. Other residents are exempted from the mandate: those with low incomes, members of Indian tribes, and those whose premiums would exceed 8 percent of their income.

So you wrote this big bitchy post that seems to be full of inaccuracies intended to make you look intelligent, and you have the audacity to whine about "working people", as if you work at all.

Two things

Firstly I'm a little puzzled; your parents, as company bosses, would now have to pay for health insurance for all the staff, AND taxes would go up a lot? can you please explain to me, as a non-American, why that would be the case?

secondly, is that something you've heard your parents complain about, having to sort out health insurance for their staff? If I heard my father complain about that, my response would probably be to ask him why he hasn't done that already.

Mentioning the ER automatically makes you an idiot. If you're curious as to the reason why, it's because you're an idiot.

Quote:Never mind that '60 Minutes' interviewer Scott Pelly was quick to accurately point out that ER care is the most expensive form of treatment that one can access. What is far more interesting is that the remark so clearly puts Governor Romney at odds with the other candidate seeking the presidency—and I don't mean Barack Obama.

Yeah because it's so easy for my parents to run a private optometry business when most of the insurance companies will no longer cover private practice and on top of that most patients cant even afford health care anyways so they buy the cheapest eye exam and glasses walmart has to offer usually totalling 2.25 and then on top of that you've got to provide money for salaries for 50 people and buy them all health insurance .. in this economy. My parents own a company and would be required to pay for insurance for all their employees, taxes would be raised astoundingly, and every person in the USA would be required to pay for health insurance.

Two things

Firstly I'm a little puzzled; your parents, as company bosses, would now have to pay for health insurance for all the staff, AND taxes would go up a lot? can you please explain to me, as a non-American, why that would be the case?

secondly, is that something you've heard your parents complain about, having to sort out health insurance for their staff? If I heard my father complain about that, my response would probably be to ask him why he hasn't done that already.

Best post yet.

What is far more interesting is that the remark so clearly puts Governor Romney at odds with the other candidate seeking the presidency—and I don't mean Barack Obama.

Unless that article says that the ER is now much cheaper than going into see your household doctor I'm not going to read it. I said ER because that's where half the dumbasses out there go over something like a cough. The whole point of my statement was to point out how people abuse insurance as it is already. Sorry you didn't see that.

My companies health insurance used to pay 100% for everything, they stopped doing that however because it was costing them too much as the employees were going to the doctors over every little thing (They used going to the ER for every little thing as an example). In the end the employees pay 100% up to a $2500, the general idea being it will make people make choices that will help them save money.

Yeah because it's so easy for my parents to run a private optometry business when most of the insurance companies will no longer cover private practice and on top of that most patients cant even afford health care anyways so they buy the cheapest eye exam and glasses walmart has to offer usually totalling 2.25 and then on top of that you've got to provide money for salaries for 50 people and buy them all health insurance .. in this economy. Typical fucking democratic moron. Insurance companies have pre-emptively stopped covering lots of patients at private health care facilities retard. Not many people can afford to pay for their glasses and eye exams out of pocket anymore in this economy that OBAMA CREATED. So shut your Obama's dick sucking mouth about shit you know nothing about and be happy that you can continue to earn salary for a few more years behind a desk.

Interesting story, I was considering going pre-chiropractic but after interviewing four seperate chiropractors at four different businesses they all told me it's not worth my time as almost no insurance providers will cover their patients anymore either and they're not sure how much longer they'll even be able to stay in business. Obama's healthcare reform is going to fuck over the entire United States but you don't care because at least socially he seems like a nice guy!

I like how you said it was my parents incompetence too as if they have any control over whether or not their patients can afford to see them. Changing your prices to mass market Walmart reading glasses prices of 3.95 is just not possible. God damn I wish there weren't so many fucking idiots here haha. This country is fucked.

The world is in a shithole it dug itself between the people, the central banking system the governments and oligopolies.

Most of the U.S. Bill of Rights and Constitution (this applies to a large chunk of the world but I dont know much about different countries documents) is considered void by federal, state, and city government under grounds of "terroism."

World foods are grown using GMO's and stronger pesticides and herbicides.

Public water contains flouride (and in my area and many others lithium) and many other chemicals (some aside due to the water absorbing lead and other metals from the pipelines)

I could care less about some puppet on TV

If you actually look learn about what happened in German politics from roughly 1932 to 1939, you'll notice ALOT of similarities to whats been happening in american politics between roughly 2001 to 2013(now) Can we learn from history and see where we might be going?

Yes in this forum if you talk about something like this the bully like attitude will show itself. most forum members know best to not talk of things or they will be bashed.. It doesn't mean they don't have opinions that the ruling negative ACK like people would stomp on you for, it just means that for the best of being a part of the forum community, they don't talk about it. Out of all the forums I've been a member of since ever this one was by far had the most negative bully like people on it.

I'm guessing than that most of you are in denial to the fact that were facing a huge financial crisis and that the US dollar is about to collapse? within the next year two at the most?

perhaps your replies will give me a hint to your thoughts?

And if i could add... obama is not leading us to a bad place, he knows exactly what he's doing for the best of all citizens and that all the countries we're militarily occupying are justified and were not being lead astray?

EDIT: I'm sorry, I feel bad every time I post on the topic, not right away, but after, I don't want to say this stuff, i believe it but don't want to be a preacher of it, I just comes out spur the moment, part of me wants to talk about it.. the thing is i'm very emotional about what's coming, a big part of me doesn't want it to happen but knows i must accept.

It's a bullies nature to perceive someone that feels hurt or emotional over something the 'bully' said or did to him/her that that's a weakness and that makes that person inferior to the 'bully' who said or did it. But might be true that the 'Bully' who feels nothing of others or cares nothing of others feelings or opinions could be closer to a psychopath?

You mean like the process of bills etc. having to be passed through congress? I don't and never thought that the president could just do things without congress that's not at all what I meant to say before with the first post. Actually i know a bit more about how the US politics works than i do about Canada's but I didn't mean to preach that Obama is 'doing these things' in that sort of way.

For example from my research I believe that the same group of people who were in control when bush was in office are still in control now. Nothing significant has changed since than only a small illusion of small things, so i know it's more than Obama himself also I believe that Canada and some other countries is under much the same control as the United States, there's only small differences it seems and as your health care system declines, so does ours and it has been.

I'm not saying i'm a big Ron paul person, but when I was following the last election debates and ron pauls messages what he meant by the neighbor thing is how the welfare state taxes the everyone/hard working and redistributes it to others. The welfare system has been around since the 1960's/70s but let's face it it's a failed system they did it to get people dependent on the government. didn't happen right away but over time it did..

That's just how he referenced it

He was against the welfare system but he didn't want to do away with it immediately he wanted to slowly wean off of it. Because yeah 40 years or so after the welfare system was put in people are very dependent on it now, so what's the solution? And if we keep it going, what happens if the system collapses for fails? all these dependent people suddenly don't have their checks.. i've been to rooming houses and places where people collect checks from the government and these people are in rough condition as it is.. I could see things getting violent that's all i'm saying

Obama is extremely left wing. Must suck to see your family's health care costs rising (except for the very poor). It's a gigantic government program that makes the majority of Americans poorer and more dependent on the state. Very leftist so.

The fact of the matter that Obama doesn't care how awfully it's being implemented and his constant lying about it shows how much he gives a fuck about anyone but his rich health care companies donors.

The exact quote is "vast right-wing conspiracy" not "lol right-wing" which coming from you implies that "lol right-wing doesn't exist in this country" because you've said much stupider things in the past and present. You're serious? In that case, start linking from places that aren't right-wing bubbles. I mean, you did know that TheBlaze is Glenn Beck's mouthpiece, right? And I'm sure you knew that NewsMax is just another site that goes LOLBERAL MEDIA BIASES!!1 without any actual proof of it, so anything else they say is suspect at best. Let's try somewhere like... I don't know, Slate. Slate's a bit slanted in the liberal direction, but the CBO numbers don't lie.

Good thing you can link me an article from a magazine well known for its contrarian positions, instead of a respectable newspaper or media company. ./

<http://www.forbes.com/sites/theapothecary/2013/11/04/49-state-analysis-obamacare-to-increase-individual-market-premiums-by-avg-of-41-subsidies-flow-to-elderly/>

Why are you getting so mad btw?

>/Also, you don't even live here lol

So I'm not allowed or incapable of finding it hilarious? Do you only read news about the US? Many people around the world read US news for the laughs and we also get news about the US from news companies in our own country because the Obama presidency is hilariously incompetent, outrageously scandalous and very extremist.

>/Why aren't you getting your news from reputable sources?

Mainstream (economic) news companies aren't reputable? Forbes.com is a fringe website?

If it sucks and doesn't work, that's fine with me. It'll get replaced with single-payer and we're then on our way toward European style healthcare.

everyone's been discussing the topic is a serious note what's wrong with having a discussion with an open mind and listening to what others have to say and taking that from an open minded view? how is that trolling?

And Instead of just attacking someone with all your anger because they said something that you don't agree with at first. be open minded, be willing to listen to others and be skeptical of your own beliefs along with others, don't put yourself or your opinion above others keep yourself equal to everyone, that's how we grow on a spiritual level if you know what I mean.

iRANian wrote on Fri, 27 December 2013 03:54 Obama is extremely left wing. Must suck to see your family's health care costs rising (except for the very poor). It's a gigantic government program that makes the majority of Americans poorer and more dependent on the state. Very leftist so.

The fact of the matter that Obama doesn't care how awfully it's being implemented and his constant lying about it shows how much he gives a fuck about anyone but his rich health care companies donors.

You know why I called you a troll? Because your first statement was a marvel of stupidity. Obama is conservative here and pretty sharply conservative in relation to other countries.

A list of some pretty conservative things Oblahma has done from the earlier source:

-Escalated the Afghanistan War (Added 30,000 More Troops)

- Has Ordered Drone Strikes (Assassinations) on US Citizens Outside the Country
- Gave Drug Companies Near Monopoly Power by Barring Imports, Extending Patents and Not Allowing the Government to Negotiate Better Prices
- Funneled Billions into the Biggest Banks in the Country After They Crashed the Economy (To be fair, Bush did this too)
- Stacked Deficit Commission with Fiscal Conservatives
- Lowered Taxes Significantly (Stimulus Bill)
- Ordered Increased Offshore Drilling Before BP Spill

But yeah, you're totally right. He's a huge liberal. Living in a relatively liberal country like yours, I can only imagine that you're trolling or just completely getting your news from the right-wing information bubble. I'll give you the benefit of the doubt and say you just don't know anything about US news (and you're a foreigner, like I know anything about European news beyond the BBC) so you picked up all of the screaming conservative rage about Obama being the second coming of satan.

Let's clarify a few points here:

I've already explained that premiums aren't "set to sharply rise".

One of your links points to Harry Reid: "Reid is worth $2.8 to $6.2 million, according to an OpenSecrets.org report, so he would not qualify for subsidies that would lower his Obamacare insurance costs." The guy's a multi-millionaire and draws a huge Senate salary. He only has to pay $4,500 more? Oh, who will think of the multi-millionaires and their four thousand dollar premium increase?

I'm also lolling at people who ignore the Federal subsidy for purchasing insurance... Because everyone will pay the sticker price!

"Why are things set to go so badly? Because the architects of the health-care exchanges have relied on three crucial assumptions, all of which are probably wrong."

Yeah totally legit source bro, a conservative opinion piece wishing for the ACA's failure that barely masks itself as such.

My family's healthcare costs rose about $5 per pay period this year. I went from paying $230 in monthly premiums to paying roughly $240. How will I ever survive?

All the premiums are set to rise in 2014...Nonetheless ObamaCare is a pretty sweet deal for poor people. It just gigantically hurts the middle class.

Here's a funny thing to note, party doesn't determine ideology. Even in the Republican party, there's gay members. You know, in a party that overwhelmingly hates them. The parties in this country are not monolithic entities, they have sub-factions that veer from the general party agenda. There are Democrats that are basically conservative in all but their party name.

So when I tell you that Obama is a conservative, it's because Obama has a lot of conservative principles now. He started off substantially different - like around 2003 when he wanted single-payer insurance AKA universal healthcare. Somewhere along the line in Congress, that idea turned into this. I've linked it before in this thread, but the ACA is a Heritage Foundation idea. The HF is a conservative think-tank. I can only assume that Obama compromised in the hopes that states would go along with it, but just about every Republican state decided they'd let the Federal government do the market exchanges for them. Kind of funny coming from people who complain about government overreach, isn't it?

I'm in the middle class. My premiums are barely being affected. Most employer-provided insurance plans are given to people in the middle class. If they prepared for the ACA rollout, the insurance increase should be minimal like it is for my company - and I work for people who fervently dislike the president and his ACA overhaul.

I'm still wondering why people think liberals care about Michael Moore, and I've certainly never called him my hero. Troll harder? I've never once said I loved the ACA. I'd rather have single-payer. I'm taking the ACA because it's the only thing we can manage to push through in a country like this. If we had more people who cared about their fellow men, single-payer would've been a no-brainer. We've got too many white people who think that it's okay for them to be poor and miserable so long as black people are more miserable than they are, so there's no way we're going to vote for single-payer just to improve their lives.

The health care system here... is no way better than private healthcare it's a crappy slow corrupt system here. before i go lemme say i'm not getting into blaming the system for people getting sick i'm just pointing out the corruption.

these are from experiences told to me by many different people over the years and my own experience here in Canada:

1. Its VERY slow, long waits for APTS. and ER even when there's no one in the ER it takes unusually long
2. The people working at hospitals etc. in our healthcare system are constantly busy with paperwork as if the paperwork is more important than helping sick people. it's almost as if the government purposely creates all this mandatory unnecessary paperwork etc. to slow down the health care system and it's ability to do it's important job(helping sick people...)
3. obviously no competition means no striving for better.. (just came to mind now obviously to anyone who knows the difference between a free society etc.blaw)

But yes our healthcare system in Canada is not striving it's stuck in the 1950's because of no competition... And probably many other reasons i just thought i'd weigh in to agree that the health care system here does suck as of... 1970's/80s?

You wouldn't know it at a young age here though... I was always told while growing up "Canadas so lucky free healthcare system etc.etc."

Annoying lies I say..

Stop discussing your favorite political hacks please, you have to understand that power corrupts and the corrupt seek power, and if voting actually made a significant difference, they wouldn't let you do it. Off course it's rather convenient when people think they are free because they got voting rights which allows them to choose between evil, evil and evil.

The US in the final stage of getting what has been coming for it since the start of the Vietnam war or even before that.

The reason it has been able to postpone it for so long is because it was once a great nation and it still has the global reserve currency, but it wont take much longer before significant changes come around and if you pay attention you can already see the signs.

Discussing who would be in a position to control the once so great nation of America better than Obama or other things closely related is really nothing more rearranging the deck chairs on the titanic. The chosen path to self destruction has been carved out way before baby Bush or Obama took office.

The New Evil Empire

America has become what Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union used to be

By John Kaminski
skylax@comcast.net
2-28-4

Remember the Red Menace, also known as the Communist threat? Or how about the Third Reich, the creator of which became the chief metaphor for evil in the 20th century?

Most Americans, certainly those younger than 30, don't remember either. Hell, they don't even remember Vietnam or Nixon or The Beatles. The terms and their connotations are totally unfamiliar, unless encountered in history texts. Millions of Americans simply do not remember what America used to stand for - freedom, justice, equality - and as a result, don't fully comprehend the appalling reality of what America has become.

Once upon a time, back in the days of Elvis and the hula hoop, when I was a little shaver, I was taught in school that when Germany took over France, Poland and other European countries, that was wrong, and the United States sacrificed almost a half million of its own young people to reverse those situations in the name of freedom. And that happened twice, 1916-18 and 1941-45.

In the same vein, I grew up being taught that the Soviet Union's annexation of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and all of Eastern Europe was an evil deed, and that for many years in a period called the Cold War, the American military objective was aimed at overturning this unjust oppression. Back in the 1950s when I was in elementary school, we used to have routine Civil Defense drills where we used to have to hide under our desks pretending we were about to be nuked by the Russians. Really!

It's a new world now. For one thing, the population of the planet has doubled in those mere 50 years. And for another, it is the United States that is now sweeping the world, scooping up all these other countries in the name of capitalist democracy, and telling lies about why it has to go to war. And instead of railing against the powerful giant stealing freedom from all these hapless victims, as it did in years past, the American press is now cheering it, justifying it in the increasingly ambivalent names of capitalism and democracy. Worse, the American people are cheering it, too, something that's never really happened in U.S. history, when the people support a war that they know is based on lies.

Really hmm I don't know much about the USSR other then some basics. I heard somewhere that the US was arming the afgans in the 1980's but I don't know it's just something i heard there's a lot of things i haven't looked into including that Ah you'd be referring to the "mujahideen" - that's a creation of a certain Zbigniew Brzezinski, one of the biggest criminals in the world!

You're close, the official story was that the CIA began arming the "freedom fighters" (LMAO THIS DOESN'T SOUND FAMILIAR OR ANYTHING) in 1980 in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan - however, a few years later Brzezinski admitted that the CIA actually began arming them in 1979 before the USSR invaded - the entire plan was literally designed to give the USSR its Vietnam war, and that's exactly what happened - the USSR didn't end the hostilities until 1989, and (as everyone knows) the USSR fell very shortly after that.

http://www.liveleak.com/view?i=a13_1240427874

Quote:Brzezinski: Yes. According to the official version of history, CIA aid to the Mujahideen began during 1980, that is to say, after the Soviet army invaded Afghanistan, 24 Dec 1979. But the reality, secretly guarded until now, is completely otherwise: Indeed, it was July 3, 1979 that President Carter signed the first directive for secret aid to the opponents of the pro-Soviet regime in Kabul. And that very day, I wrote a note to the president in which I explained to him that in my opinion this aid was going to induce a Soviet military intervention.

Quote:Q: When the Soviets justified their intervention by asserting that they intended to fight against a secret involvement of the United States in Afghanistan, people didn't believe them. However, there was a basis of truth. You don't regret anything today?

Brzezinski: Regret what? That secret operation was an excellent idea. It had the effect of drawing the Russians into the Afghan trap and you want me to regret it? The day that the Soviets officially crossed the border, I wrote to President Carter: We now have the opportunity of giving to the USSR its Vietnam war. Indeed, for almost 10 years, Moscow had to carry on a war unsupportable by the government, a conflict that brought about the demoralization and finally the breakup of the Soviet empire.

Q: And neither do you regret having supported the Islamic having given arms and advice to future terrorists?

Brzezinski: What is most important to the history of the world? The Taliban or the collapse of the Soviet empire? Some stirred-up Moslems or the liberation of Central Europe and the end of the cold war?

This is one of the most twisted men in the world. If you'd like to learn more about him just look up his books, he's written many books for his foreign policy students (i.e. the next leaders of the country) that pretty much openly explain the affairs of the world. I've only read part of the Grand Chessboard where he describes how the US controls the Eurasian (Europe - Asia) continent by encircling the continent with friendly/vassal states - Europe, Japan, the Middle East w/ Iraq and Israel (though Israel arguably influences America) currently, I would expect Syria will join that group soon if it isn't burned to the ground... also Vietnam in south Asia.

I just picked the liveleak article but they all say the same thing, he gave that interview to some newspaper in the late nineties I believe. Just google him lol, you'll unravel the story just by following his breadcrumb trail!

In regards to the USSR - just google "who funded the bolsheviks" and dig - you'll find out lol

EDIT: oh and by the way, the "freedom fighters" in Afghanistan are what became known as Al Qaeda
