I have been gone from Renegade for several months, and upon my return I have taken to using WSAD controls for movement, rather than my SIDEWINDER (which I still use during gameplay sometimes). I will not use WSAD when flying, however, because of my propensity to accidentally press the E key. Which controls do you prefer?

I hate joysticks, to me they're just lame versions of the Dual Shock 2 .

With the arrows, you cannot advance diagonally, can you? C4Kitty has always been rude and unpallatable in the chat rooms on WOL and here. I don't know why the community puts up with her or people like her. Lately, she just annoyed me with her spamming of the PROXY C4 thread today. Sorry if I sound too acidic, Kiwi. I am usually quite passive.

check it Giz, i used to use the arrow keys, but then i switched to WADS becuase of the MANY MORE KEY BINDS WHICH CAN EASILY BE ACCESSED(E is right there amd i set Q as my beacon select button). and u can move foward diagonaly, since i have a 5 button mouse i set one of my mouse button binds as "ATL" or "ALT+Q" whatever it is to strafe in an aircraft

I always used WASD, I just find it easier. As far as flying goes, WASD can also be used to strafe, i thinks its left alt or left control or something. YEAH, I hate that Frekin' E key, i just mapped it to a less easily pushed button. [ January 16, 2003, 19:12: Message edited by: DieselRaptor24 ]

The Real Gizbotvas!ve alwaysed user WSAD for controls but insteadof using E for "Use" I use shift. I also opted to put C4 as 1 and my pistol as F. I find this works very well for my. Q & E are turn right and left. I need to get a new mouse my "pads" are worn down - this makes movement jerky and requires more effort.

dont worry about it giz, she does it to everyone... and the only funny thing is - its that she cant back her words up. "you have more kills than deaths" LMFAO thats funny 40 player games consist of no teamwork what so ever. and anyone that says meow meow meow must be starving for attention
