I think that I always jump out of a Nod APC from the back door, and always exit a GDI APC from the front door. Does that sound right? Anyone have a different experience? [January 23, 2003, 15:32: Message edited by: The Real Gizbotvas]

it is true, not positive about the gdi but the nod apc always exits out the back. use that to your advantage, ex1: fields i bout a tech, apc and nuke; as my team rushed the agt i drove the apc in backwards and parked by the rocks by the barracks, and hopped out right behind the rocks and ducked behind the bar taking minimal damage and preceded to nuke the bar. ex2: full nod apc on mesa and back up to the gdi pp door and they can hop out, without getting mowed down.

I was wondering if there was a method to control what side you came out on ; i.e. holding the right arrow button when u chose to exit. Anyone have any comments on this ?the0ne thats a negative, you would just turn to the right then exit out the back(with nod)

I am fairly sure that GDI APC always exit the front as well.

The reason about nod always exit the back door may due to SP. It is ture that GDI exit in front of the APC and so does some tanks.

No, I think that won't work. There are better ways.
