OMG. I never knew someone could look so foolish. I don't know if I should clap or scream.

I will not dignify this with destroying it. But the wolves will be coming out tonight and they are hungry.

Co. #44 could you forward me "Saddams actual plan"? You seem to have a copy. Recent news reported an Iraqi scientist [er someone] is showing coalition forces places where Saddam destroyed some WMD/burried them. Discrediting the 'invading forces' is definatly a valid tactic. He still loses but it could deliver a bigger blow than Saddam could ever hope to inflict in military conflict. No worries though, he left his trash all over the place. No the other side of Saddam, Russia, China, German, Syria and who knows will be aired on internation news. I can't wait.

Lemme get straight, you thought Havocsnipe's bs was believable, yet you think this believable idea is dumb.

Can someone say:
HYPOCRITE?

You fail to see a lot of things.

It's usually masked in the overuse of trailing off (...) that you use when trying to make your posts sound like they mean any-fucking-thing at all.

Which they don't, by the way.

Sounds like you can't hold a single thought and must resort to something utterly off-topic to slander me in an argument.

Alright so most of you agree with this mangled peice of post but I will not argue on why this is wrong as I said above. Maybe if he corrects his grammer/spelling. I find it hard to shape meaning out of. And I want him to fix it, because, well I guess I want him to learn their names and how to structure a sentance.

You want him to correct his grammar and spelling, and yet you can't even spell yourself!

It's piece, not peice. Remember, I before E.

It's grammar, not grammer. What's so hard about remembering that it's an 'a' not an 'e'?

It's sentence, not sentance. DuH!

And I'm sure there needs to be at least 2 more commas in there.

(Hypocrite! Make fun of someone else's grammar and spelling and you aren't even that good at it. lol...)

Ouch. Maybe next time I complain about spelling I should double check my post. You have a good point there. Yet his grammar and spelling I felt impacted the correct reading of his post. It is like me writing:

i have to meat people in the feeled of polytics to know more stuff for the arghument i make later according to plan it should be a good discussing the topic will be interesting and like I plan there is no room for lose

Although the above was an admittably heavy handed example it does affect the content (which is not content that is real, if you descipher something from that then don't assume it is my actual plans).

And I can only see one spot for a comma. Please tell me where I can place them.

Oh, and "DuH!" isn't a sentence. A sentence needs a subject and predicate (hmm... I am not about to look that up but I think I misspelled that), and you placed capital letters in the middle of the word.

Ha, no...

It is a sentence. ("No." is a complete sentence also.) And I didn't include a capital letter in the middle of the word, I did at the end to add emphasis.

A sentence is a subject and a verb which is ended with a period.
