Would it be possible to show how many views a thread has recieved (near where it shows how many posts there are?). I think it would help get a measure of the interest people have in the threads, even if people aren't posting. I know you can get a list of how many views there were if you search for the post with the search tool, but in the normal forum display, it only shows how many posts there were.

BeanyheadIt is on vBulletin.

What is? Thread Views Counter? Of course it is, it is on nearly all bb software.

These forums run on phpbb. These did have the Thread Views column, but they were edited out of this board because the original Renegade board didn't have the Thread Views Column.

LOL - you're absolutely right, Phoenixx -- I took them out because they weren't in the original forums and I was trying to stay as true to the old ones as possible.

true you are trying to stay the same. but there comes a point at where small changes wont hurt, especially now that everyone is settled in
