What are the other 8 people doing? It might be helpful to list your staff and what each of them are working on, so it can be seen where you need the most help.

Ambition is a nice thing to have, but that doesn't make this happen. I can assure you that a team of "8" people will not make a very fun experience. Especially when you have to take into account the large, strenuous amounts of time and effort go into making something. I can picture an old VGA style engine, with primitive gameplay, and inferior graphics.

But hey, thats my opinion, and my view on these wild ambitions.

It's sounds like you're trying to create a game that would be released in shops, in which case if this is you're first time making a game, not much chance that's gonna happen. It sounds like you don't even know what a game engine is.

Good luck though, lol.

spreegemGame Engine? I will be making one for use with my game. My dad has several books on just how to program a game, creating a game engine, ETC

You're saying that you are just learning how to program games? You're kidding right? You expect to make a real and complete game engine, with very little knowlege of how to program one?

btw, most games take any where between hundreds and hundreds of thousands of lines of code, to well in the millions.

Typing at a constant speed of 50 wpm (yes that's giving you too much credit, maybe I should make it 15wpm) it would take you almost 28 days without stopping at all, not even for food or bathroom breaks, or slowing down to type 100,000 lines of code (a very small game) (20 words a line)

it would take you 6944 days at constant speed of 50wpm, without stopping, no bathroom/food breaks at all to do 500,000 lines of code (a quite small game) (20 words a line)

It would take you 13889 days at a constant speed of 50wpm, without stopping, with no breaks at all, including bathroom/food breaks to do 1,000,000 lines of code (medium-large game) (20 words a line)

All of this is if you can achieve 50wpm, every minute of every day with no breaks whatsoever (sleeping, eating, bathroom, shower, etc.). Now let's factor in your true wpm, probably under 15-20wpm, and that you'd only be able to work on it less then 2-4 hours on some days, maybe 5 on weekends. You would not be able to program your own game.

And what do your 8 little friends do?

spreegemOMFG My game is in no way associated at all with WarCraft. And what makes you think that I am copying Warcraft??

Humans and Orcs plus one other race are sides from Warcraft. (not sure what the third one is)

Humans orcs and elves are races from Devine Divinity also.

Just because 2 out of many of the sides are from WC doesnt meant it's a rip off of WC.....

They're all mythical creatures. I supposed D&D is a ripoff of WC then?

Anyhow, Spreegem, you might want to find a game programming board for this, you'll get more help and less flames (hopefully).

I will also have my dad help me program the game who already knows how to program VERY WELL in C++. And i will move this to another forum so as I get less flames on this topic. My friends will aslso help me program.

Ever Quest has Humans and Elves also

Same with Baulders Gate

Gothic has Orcs, and Human in it

The Elder Scrolls 3 Morrowind has all three of those races in it.

I suppose all of those games are ripoffs of WC then because they have Humans, Elves, or Orcs in it.
