Slicer_238keyword there when and not leave renegade but stop comign to the forums.

What you said there was irrelevant.

Even if you add "When" we all leave, and he says "What do you mean we'll leave", it means the same thing, dumbass.

You don't need the stupid commas in your signature anymore. I don't have any censorship except against gay outwar links.

The signature attacking someone isn't appropriate, however. You'll notice no one else gets away with attacking anyone excessively in their signatures, either. Thanks.

You spelled "the" wrong. Lets not forget your lack of punctuation in your third sentence.

If you're talking about your account from the Westwood hosted forum, you're never going to see that again... and if you just want it for the post count, you'll have to earn that post count again... everyone started over equally when they moved.

I just wanna know what the big bloody deal is with post counts?

anyone?

Like what difference is it with a person who has 10 posts and a person with 50 posts?

Nothing at all!!!!

This is silly...

the people with higher post counts are the people that post the much...that's all there is to it...and usually it's not a good thing

Actually, this forum software doesn't let me re-send activation emails. (dumb, I know)

So, if you tell me after you've already created another account, then why should I bother activating the old one which has no posts?

This may sound dumb but I would rather use my first account then the second. The first is always the best except for certian things I will not say.
