Don't you just bloody hate it when you ask for a burger, you tell them that you don't want mustard or mayo' on it

They give it to you and then you take a big bite, only to find out there is like triple the normal amount Mayo' and Mustard!!!!!!!!!!!!

Its like when you don't want it they put triple the normal amount it for you!!! GRRRR!!

So i was so pissed off i actually walking straight into the kitchen of the macdonalds, and i said "WHEN I SAY I DON'T WANT MAYO OR MUSTARD, IT MEANS I-WANT-NOT-ONE-BIT-OF-MAYO-OR-MUSTARD, NOT TRIPLE THE NORMAL AMOUNT!!!"

Lol, this kid almost broke down and cried, i have to admit i shouldn't of done it but damn, everytime i ask, it always happens.

At least after that rant and rave i got a free burger *without Mayo and Mustard" plus large fries, large coke and a McFlurry.

Everytime i walk in there now, big all the staff treat me as a VIP..

I guess speaking out loud once in a while does get you far!!

Just thought i would share this with ya, hehe

I worked fast food for 2 years...your type is the type who I want to beat the shit out of. They treat you like a VIP because you probably got that kid in a shitload of trouble and they dont want to get fired.

Chances are that if you were speaking clearly to the cashier...then it was either A) made wrong from the back or B) bagged wrong...both of which wouldn't be that kids fault. Mistakes are made...and it's hard to make everyone happy. If you didn't want what you got, then go up and let them know...dont yell at them.

i didn't do it with the intention of getting free food. i know what i did was wrong, and i did come back and say im deeply sorry and that i shouldn't of lashed out.(one of those days)

Firstly, *Trying* to beat the shit out of me would not be a good idea (5 years of constant Rugby and 3 years of muscular training, but thats not important). I know that kid got in trouble but i came about a few hours ago and apologised for what i had done, and they assured me that the guy wouldn't get in trouble. I even went up to the guy and shooke hands with and had a drink/laugh with him after.

Skier222then why do they call them "happy meals"?

Okay... So what if the kid got fired? Who would really give a s.h.i.t? Will the kid care? Probably not becuase McDonalds is probably paying him minimum wage, and he could find a much better job than working there. :rolleyes:

$8 - $9 hour for a kid is great pay. You have no real education or skills that deserve anything more than that. When I was a kid we didn't get paid like that. My first job when I was a kid, I got $3 an hour. Why do kids feel they need more money? You don't pay rent, buy the food or pay the major household bills. 9 times out of 10 you even get a fat return check.

When you get done with school, then you have earned the right to bitch about getting paid $8 - $9.

Man, the Mcdonalds here in the suburbs of Chicago treat their employees like royalty. I mean they start off at $10.50 a hour, get paid vacations and 401K! Not only that they get HEALTH AND DENTAL INSURANCE! Now I said to myself, "Thats a first time I seen a Mcdonalds give out free health and dental." Cause you know I don't see that here in Chicago. Thats almost at every Mcdonald's here in the suburbs of Chicago.

The reason for that is because not that many people live in the suburbs. Mostly everybody live in the city. So they really want workers badly.

I know, it's funny. I listen to my nephews bitch about making "Only $10 from "The Man" " They both work at fast food restraunts and are 16 & 17.

When I was that age, I would have killed to get that kind of money.

I worked my way up to $8 from $6 once I was made a crew leader. 8 dollars an hour was alot to me...it still would be if I wasn't being paid a set amount from one of the local schools. Fast food places always get something wrong because it's hard to make everyone their own special thing...and if it's wrong, you can just take it back and ask for a new one. As for the drive through...more can go wrong because of the intercoms...if you think it's just hard for you to understand what they're saying, try listening to a person speak over a diesel engine.

Yes the kid would care if he got fired. even though it doesn't particularly matter...it's still a good thing to have your own source of income when you live with your parents. it's nice to be able to get some of the luxuries in life...and I can assure you, with the job market the way it is...it is extremely hard to find another job that the kid could possibly do.

ok try this for sizes.....

Im 16, i have been living in australia by my self for about 9 months now, i have my own job.

Im currently working as a Analyst, studying how programs work, how to improve them, and also creating new a better technology to work with.

I left school at 15.

Now i have to pay rent, i have to pay bills, i have to buy my own shopping.

I am living in a country that is new to me, and my mother (no father) is on the other side of the world.

If i can look after my self and get a good job, then any one can.

I never said I want to work there, nor do I think that is decent pay. I'm just saying it's much over minimum wage and wouldn't be a bad place to start.

Well, my mother and i came to australia, but after a while she decided she was missing her family and friends to much and decided to go home, but i really liked Brisbane, so i decided to stay here, and make it on my own.

So thats basicly it, and i don't regret it one bit!!! Best time of my life!

I can identify with your pain. It infuriates me when I order my burger plain and they put shit on it. Ask Blazer. You don't want to be around me when I get my burger and I can smell the nasty shit on it before I even open it. I'll never understand why people want to cover over the yummy taste of cooked dead cow with condiments. YUCK.

However, I usually rant away from the employees and am nice to them when I ask for a replacement. The bad thing is that I usually drive-through and take it home so then when they fuck up I have to drive back there or just eat the fries and give the burger to my brother.

1. Madtone chose to live his life like that.

2. the US is not Austrailia...no matter what you might think. different countries work different ways. around 70% of jobs in the US REQUIRE you to have a college degree of one sort or another...and just about all of them require you to at least have taken a high school equivalency test. a person that drops out of high school at 16 will most likely have to work fast food or at a grocery store for the rest of their lives.

as a high school graduate...it is still next to impossible to find any job here. my uncle is the Vice President of a construction company, and he cant get me a job (he tried I know). The only reason

I have even a minor job is because my cousin is trying to start a candle stick bussiness, and she needs a quickly done website. I applied at over 20 places...my ex applied at almost 50 and she only got calls back from 2 of them.
