Ifantry only

No base kill

To give up crouch and throw your c4

No beacons

No killing prisoners

These are rules for most games some will have some extra rules like no mines.

Ah yes...C&R . I love it .

1) To give up, throw your timed c4 and crouch to give up and than you must go to teh designated jail for the other team(Usually Nod has the aitstrip building, GDI usually is barracks or the WF bay)

2) Do not kill a prisoner when they give up EVER

3) Don't buy vehicles(DOS)

4) NO MINES(DOS)

5) Never pull out a gun while in prison until you exit the prison

6) It is usually good to not kill the prisoner when you are guarding them

7) No building attacking

When the hosts changes the rules, follow them

9) NEVER EVER EVER KILL YOUR TEAMS PRISONERS UNLESS THREATENED

10) During a raid, don't just immediately kill the prisoner, kill the people.

Thats basic stuff, (DOS= Depends on Server)

OK, but what's the point? Is one team the cops, and one team the robbers? Can you kill the cops? Who chases who?

That happens alot with n00b hosts (These games attract n00bs like magnets) Thats why I usally host my own if I'm in the mood.

C&R has evolved, but in a wrong way, before when it started, it used to be a mix of roleplay, normal CNC, and current CNR.

Nod team was police (because of the apaches and officers) and GDI was Rob team (because some characters look like thugs and they had seddans and humvees)

There was a whole system of court and jail, it was really great!

Now you might ask: how the hell do you know all that?

well, the awnser is simple: I helped my sister to create the first Cops And Robbers game.
(meaning in Renegade, heh)

Ok crimmy, Ill help you.

Both teams are the Cops and the Robbers. You run around shooting people, with, infantry only. If you are shot, but not killed, you may Crouch and throw your Timed C4 to "Give Up" or "Surrender".

When you Surrender, you follow the person who shot you and you surrendered to (without having a weapon drawn or they will kill you). If the enemy is GDI, they will lead you to Jail, which is the Barracks. If the enemy is Nod, they will lead you to the Airstrip, which is their jail.

In jail, you may not leave unles your allie comes to "save" you. basically they come in and shoot stuff, and you help them.

If you are fighting, and soemone surrenders, you cant kill them, or else they go cry to the host who boots you.

So basically, its Infantry only with a little tiwst.

And yes, as Dante said, the rules are often changed by noob hosts who suck.

Thank you PsY, that's the best answer so far.

OK, so if you go to jail, any of your teammates can come to the building and essentially that sets you free?

And the goal is most prisoners or most points??

Here are my rules for my C&R server every now and then

1. No profanity
2. No basekill
3. The only vehicles allowed are extras, and Hummvee/Buggy
4. Crouch and throw C4 to surrender
5. No being an ass
6. If you break a rule and if me, or my brother sees it you will be instantly kicked

And my bro puts so much Remote C4 on the prisoners face that they can't see LOL

The advantage to surrendering is that u still live, u just dont get killed. Your team comes saves you (most of the time), and 60% of the time u survive, but if your team is n00bish and doesnt come very quickly it gets boring just sitting there in prison, unless you are daring enough to take on your captors. When you pull out your gun you better have it loaded (i once pulled out my gun and i had to reload, which then my captor shot me).The best character to escape with is a sniper, u can just pull out your gun and shoot them in the head.

The bad thing...

N00bs...

Baskillin', Prisoner killin' n00bs.

Usualy 2 people out of 5 in your game are n00bs. Its sad.

Maybe someone could set a dedicated server passworded for everyone who knows C&R to join.

My ban lists is getting full... 500kb...

There is another gaming mode that is quite popular too, it's called 'duelling' usually played on Club Carnage Extreme duelling takes place on the main dance floor.

The rules are dictated by the host (usually) you could have a 1v1 2v2 or all v all aka. a Rumble! or Team Rumble (<-- that gets a bit out of hand sometimes) or special weapon rules, sniper only etc....

A duel is started (if there is 2 players only in the server) by throwing timed C4 in to the center of the dance floor and waiting for it to explode (a bit like a starting pistol). If there are more than 2 players in the server a different player can use remote C4 to start a duel (usually the host).

Players start at opposite ends of the dance floor and must not leave for the duration of the match. there are a few other things you could make rules like only the host uses caps lock on to chat so everyone knows who is calling the shots, and turning FF on so you can have a true all v all

I'm currently putting together a map for this mode that gives the host more control over the arena. It's looking good expect the extra characters I used in Temple_DM

This mode usually is invoked when players become tired of roleplay and want to kill each other

What I don't understand about the Cops and Robbers mode, is why would anyone surrender? Why not die fighting? No one can attack your harv or refinery, right? You'll always have credits, and no one can take down your hand/barr, so why save a dying character? why not die in the firefight and come back with another character?

This game mode makes no sense to me.

because, in case you haven't noticed, people that play this game today are pussies. They get in a firefight and go run out in the middle of the tiberium. Several times I've gotten into fights and everyone runs away from me. it's me as a hotty vs a mobius at the fucker runs...shit pisses me off. Then you got these other pussies that instead of fighting, get out of their tank and repair it while it's getting shot and wait for their teammates to bail them out of it.

Its my sig, I'll put whatever I want in it, you can't do anything about it, I could not support the KKK because I'm hispanic and that would not work out I do not like France because before the war they were supportive about disarming Saddam, then when the war started they backed out. We saved the Frenches ass in WW2 from Nazi Germany many Americans died fighting for France, including my Grandfather, then when we need some help the run and hid. STAY TO THE TOPIC, DON'T TURN THIS INTO A FLAME WAR, IDIOT. :rolleyes: :rolleyes: :rolleyes:
