Most people that don't like the US are jealous, plain and simple. I have asked many military people and history teachers of mine why most people don't like us, and what I just said is what they say. We have lots of rights, some countries have few, just the other day France banned the world "e-mail" They think it is too "western" talk about freedom of speech. :rolleyes: We can be lazy if we want, our government works and we have the most well trained and well armed military in the world Oh yea!

I love history
Petain was the leader of all French forces, he secretly buddied up w/ Nazi Germany and help them even though they were enemies. He was later charged w/ aiding the enemy sentence to death but in the end he was only prisoned for life and died in there 1951.

what is it with you and your boycotting french-ness? the french already got the money from the store/distributer what you are doing is boycotting stores... honestly. if people added mcdonalds to the list, would you boycott that to? in my opinion, the whole anti-french stuff is taking things a little too far... (by the way, nothing personal. )
I never take anything personal, that only leads to trouble, your post is junk to me, clean it up and maybe I'll respect you thoughts as I do for everyone else whether they agree w/ me or not.
Are you 10? Do you know how a boycott works? When you stop buying, French cheese for example, it will start to pile up in the store and the store owner will see that no one is buying this stuff and will order less then none, I would know this because my Aunt owns a grocery store. I don't eat from McDonald's, that stuff is trash in a wrapper. And it just not products, my Dad dumped ALL of his French stock. And yes God is good, don't bring him into this :rolleyes:

no i am not 10, and do know how a boycott works. but even if lots of people boycott these products that they have used for years without a problem, and they pile up in stores, and the stores don't purchase them anymore, what is the point? what have you accomplished? why do you so childishly hate the french over something so lame as them voting against going to war? get over it... the war is pretty much over anyway. besides, according to you people, all they do is surrender, so what good would they have done in the first place? and yes, i will "clean up" my original post...

Eh ... it's people like you that make America look like ignorant assholes. Posting that right wing bullshit up and then telling people you watch unbiased news .... FOX, give me a break - they have Bush's head so far up their ass when he spits it comes out of their mouth.

Of course the French are just as petty and childish, if not more so. But still, posting pictures are fine - that's funny, but that boycott is fucking stupid. Not only that, it's anti-American. The people who are really hurting from that are the American citizens that own the franchises.

I really wish people were smarter.

don't watch fox news. any other news network outside of America, or the smaller news networks are waaaay better. I've seen the difference between FOX news, CNN, ABC, all those biased networks against something more honest such as BBC, Cspan...Actually the channel 4 news in UK too.

There is just so much not being told, or distorted.

England got laughed at for going to war with US. Lots of people thought it was a joke. France have no obligation to go and fight a war to help one of the world's superpowers. So singling out France as cowards is a pretty retarded thing to do.

Enough with the boycotting already!
