This happens, if anyone has comcast you would know there are bars around, all power by java. I changed my security settings and it worked at first but then it it stopped. Ive tried reinstalling windows and that doesnt work. When I go to fileplanet the sever list dont show up when I click a link it doenst open up. But it fixes itself when I restart but 2minutes later it does that again. WTF is wrong with this pos computer.

Weird situation.

Just been to the site myself to see what was missing.

Firstly, all the menu's are not java, they're purely made using shockwave flash.
Maybe you should try updating your shockwave player at macromedia.com?
Tho i can't think why it'd work for you for the first two minutes, then stop.

Good luck tho.

Those buttons are flash. They're probably using a javascript to load the flash buttons on their site.

Reinstall javascript, reinstall Macromedia Flash Player, patch IE, enable javascript support.

http://www.java.com/en/download/windows_automatic.jsp MS don't support Java anymore. I had to use sun microsystems java vm. Sun microsystems contract with microsoft is over so you eed to get it from sun microsystems now unless you have service pack 1 in windows XP.
