A few years and 11 hours ago, the most beautiful girl on the world sat behind me on my bicycle..... And I didnt ask her if she wanted to become my girlfriend..... 15 min later the first tower felt....

It's a day that I wont ever forget...

It's the day that nobody will forget.

Oh well, I can't really be bothered too much by it after two years. Ofcourse it's sad, but I think a lot more bad things happened in the world in the past few years.

Hey guys, no matter how you feel about politics don't turn this thread into a flame war. A lot of innocent people died that day and instead of bickering lets just show some respect. Tomorrow we can all get back to that but I think everyone should just respect this day.

Everyone has been civil so far but I can see people jumping into this on one side or another.

Time travels to fast these days. september thee 11th will be a day that we will remeber into the future of america. (silence) All we can do now is pray that all the US forces will be able to destroy alkida and stop terrorism so we may live in peace once again. My gym teacher's wife died in that world trade center incident and 3 other people from my comunity. 26 philippinos are also dead from the WTC. Do u think they should make a movie about this?

I'd hate to see this event ruined by a flashy Hollywood interpretation of it.
