As you may or may not have been aware, one of our team members was holding the ball for the whole project... basically everyone else was ready to go, just waiting on one person's piece for everything to plug into.

We finally got word today... his motherboard and power supply got hit and he's awaiting a new MB on Wednesday, then it's nose to the grindstone.

More info when I have it.

That was 2 and a half Wednesdays ago. I was wondering if he got his mother board yet and how his progress is coming. I know someone knows something?

Great,

"basically everyone else was ready to go, just waiting on one person's piece for everything to plug into."

And now he's gone. How much of a setback?
