As you might know, warranto is one of the most objective posters on here. Never losing his cool, fair to all. Needless to say a great addition to the team. Welcome!

heh, thanks Crimson. I try to maintain a level head, though I'll admit some people here make it hard.

To everyone else, don't worry, I won't be using my powers much unless desperately needed. It's more or less a free-for-all unless certain lines are crossed. (Mind you this is applicable only to me using my moderator abilities, others here might not feel the same way). If a line is ever crossed, I'll make a point of saying so before I lock a topic and leave it up for a while so that it's known what line is crossed. Though I remind you, I'm sure you've noticed I have an interest in the legal system, so anything that is done that could violate a law will be locked or moderated in some other way. This includes personal threats, posting cheats, private information etc. Other things like posting mod ideas that have a potential to break copyrights, I won't touch, but I will notify in the thread that it's a potential danger.

Other than that, feel free to PM me with any problems you may have regarding a decision I may make. Something said in private will not affect you, unless of course it's a threat of some sort.

Have fun, and I hope I can do a good job.

You just better not take Nietzsche's philosophies as your primary basis for moderating. O.o
