I selected my desktop image, and it is on center, but I don't want it on center because it is too small that way so I click stretch then when I press apply, my desktop goes black. Does anyone know how to fix this?

What version of Windows do you have?

(You could just open the image in a image editor and resize it to whatever resolution you're using...)

It going black refers to the entire display or the background image?

You're welcome.

(You could play around with active desktop, video/card settings, display settings, etc. if you want to fix it for real.)
