Login and view your gallery where the images were put in.

Have you even been to n00bstories? You cannot do it that way anymore. They are no longer in the gallery. You have to use the id numbers to get to them. But I do not remember them. My harddrive got reformatted and I had some pictures from the chicago auto show on there. And I would like to get those. But I dont know the numbers.

If you've posted them on these forums or somewhere else just search for the post and copy/paste the url from it.

(Maybe they can create a temporary gallery with a small thumbnail of every image and have people find theirs that way...)

That would be good. Just have a community image gallery with all the pictures.

Let me re-iterate. I didn't remove the galleries intentionally. I'm not stopping the image hosting service. I just lost the database that links your images to the owners. I still have all the images. The problem is, I have about 10,000 images with no way to know who they belong to.

If you have the ID for the image you want, I can put it back in your gallery. Just get a hold of me and give me the numbers.

Thats the thing. I do not know the numbers. Do you think you could do that communnity image gallery thing until the images are claimed?

what you want and what you get are two different things its a free service you cannot do anything about it crimson said she is sorry.. just live with it..

btw you siggy image is huge..

Give Nodbugger the directory where the images are stored and let him go through the 10,000 to retrieve his beloved images.

Please add ID number 1055662786 to my gallery. SomeRhino uploaded it, but he's not active enough to claim it.

Done.

Look, guys, you have no idea how crappy I feel about losing the galleries. I don't want you to think I'm like "It's a free service, get over it." I don't think that way. I'm really glad that many of you are being so understanding.

I'll see what I can do about a community gallery. I'm just concerned because some people had hidden folders with images that they didn't want just anyone to see. That's my biggest concern.

Yes, you can PM me a list of images you want back in your gallery. It's very easy for me to put them in there once I know the numbers.
