opens hatch ... The sun... It's still shining, and the air... It's decidely breathable...

Doitle walks down the sidewalk, children are playing, the sun low in the sky shines a brilliant red orange as Doitle's Silouette slowly gets smaller on the horizon... "It's Time to pick up the pieces and start anew..."

fades to black

Ohh my god that kid has a video camera and it is pointed at me! He is stealing my soul with satin's powers OMG! That sounds like it would be funny just to walk around with a video camera pointing it at everyone, better home they don't come after you in an angry mob with pitch forks though. What would really freak them out is those computers that you can wear it has the little screen that comes down in front of your eye, if you had one of those that would probably scare the shit out of all of them.

Remember, just because someone's culture is different from yours doesn't meant that you should be makin fun of them...

unless it's really funny

I'm not making fun of them . . . I am talking about how it is so different from mine and how their culture is very queer. Amish are funny people.
