Frogs in particular are really suffering from global warming. The tadpoles are changing very quickly, which causes crazy things like three frogs in one.

Exactly. Don't vote Bush. Have you heard is plan for forests? After careful consultation with lobbyists, he decided the best course of action for preventing forest fires is to cut down all of the big old trees. Now, you'd be hard pressed to find any scientist who says cutting down big old trees is a good thing. Big trees actually prevent forest fires by keeping the floor moist. What causes forest fire spread is low-lying brush. But, big companies don't have too much use for tiny plants, now, do they?

It looks kind of what you would get if you combined frogs, snails and moles together.

Whoa, that looks like when chromosphere was used on 3 frogs . They are probably fused together .

Or maybe it is some kind of genetic experiment to create biological weapon that was made by Osama Bin Laden (or how do you spell his name), to invade America by scaring people to death or by making them laugh to death yeah...for invading america...especially since that was found in the UK.

you also kind of pointed out the obvious by saying that they're probably fused together.

"The creature - which has six legs - has stunned a BBC wildlife expert who said it could be an early warning of environmental problems."

Wow sound the duh alarm. What else could it be? A failed biological weapon attack from iraq?

Obesity has passed smoking as the #1 preventable cause of death. :rolleyes:

BTW you need an account to see that.

I always wondered how you measure that; I mean, if someone is obese and smokes, and gets a heart attack or something, is the cause then smoking or obesity?

They would both be contributing factors, so I guess it would be a tally for each.
