ok i been thinking and alot of CnC fans want to see "Tiberium Twilight" but westwood been liquadated and EA is prolly going to lay to rest the original CnC franchise with UO, bullfrog, and all the other companies that they "helped out" over the last few years.

the only way we will be able to get tiberium twilight it to make it our selfs mod the hell out of one of the CnC engines to be the game, ra2 engine vs the generals engine use renegade to make the FMV, action shots, brefings and another mod for that see if joe kugan want to do some voice overs for the return of Kane (:rolleyes: yea right)

just some thoughts

I've seen a lot of people "request" mods. The chances of any of them coming true is if it will have a 'huge' impact on a 5 or more person modding team. Besides, most of the ideas will become jobs rather than having fun.

Personally, I prefer fun.

Most mod's will only happen if you are willing to start the work yourself.

If your not prepare to do any work, why should anyone else help you?

it's not a bad idea Conan. Though I assume your going to be the one to approach EA to get the rights to the C&C series, Tiberium titles, etc?

Although Generals in Renegade style would be awesome.

Gibberish and Warranto got the right idea.

Start the mod yourself and it will grow.

You can even use another game engine if you wish. But there is no real way of making Tiberian Twilight, because we just don't know what happens in it!

Generals was a good game and zero hour was even more fun...but it kinda gets old fast. and its pretty easy to mod.

well maybe since i actually got positive response, im prolly get started on it after im done with my current project <http://www.planetneverwinter.com/daggerford>

like hell im paying for it it will go down as a mod, and rename it as tiberium midnight, dust, after sun ect. and go from there
