I know this is off topic, but what are your thoughts on it? I see both sides of the argument, but not sure which one I agree with.

I used to download music, like one or two songs from a particular artist to see if I like the song and whatnot and to see if I wanted to buy the cd, but now Im afraid to because of this RIAA or whatever they are. Do you all still download? If so off what,I used to use KazaaLite? Ive been told they only come after you when you download about a 1000 songs a month, I find that kind of far fetched, I always thought even if you downloaded one you could get busted. Ahh, im so confused!

I usually download the full album off IRC. If I like it I buy it, if not I delete it. Software is another story though.

I also download music from kazaa lite. Most times I buy music. but music is getting expensive. I have to pay about 22,00 EURO for 1 cd. I think that's a bit insane. so I also download music.

I download occasionally. I disable upload and I have a router so RIAA bastards can't catch me easily.

But In a month or two, I download like 2-3 songs. Not much at all.

If I listened to music much more than I do now, I'd sign up for those "$1/song" deals on the internet.

As for software, I download it and I try it. If I like it (and am going to use it often) I'll buy it. Well thats if it is affordable.

Warez is bad.. and posting your list of warez on a public (PUBLIC) forum, is bad.

I download MP3s from IRC or Kazaa (Albums from IRC, single MP3s from Kazaa). Nothing will stop me

It's all stored on an FTP server in a country where there are no copyright laws. So, I'm not facing any legal ramifications.

I thought it out carefully. I've already been sued twice because of warez (Total cost: $14,000) so I figured I'd take the nice legal route.

I know that this is a bit off topic, but Is there any way to download NFS1 from kazaa/IRC, or anywhere else? It was a very good game and even if it is very old, my brother liked it much better than any other NFS . Or if someone has, it could you send it to me?

For older stuff, if it isn't abandonware , try Emule. It's not the fastest P2P software/network, but it has a huge collection of older and rare files.

For newer things, BitTorrent is the way to go.

I got rid of Kazaa, & Kazaa Lite K++.

Cops are too strict now, I got iPod ne ways But it cost 0.99$ a song

Kazaa was good till it didn't work, you had to buy somethig... and Kazaa Lite K++ Froze my Comp everytime I open something that I had to do...

So I got rid of the two.

But Otherwise I would download Techno/Trance Rock (KoRn, Rammstein, Slipknot) Trchno I like cuase it is good for stuff when it doesnt deal with killing. I would listen to Rock when I play Renegade cuase it's like Heavy Metal and your killing, GETS ME PUMPED

Yup. Downloading copyrighted files is legal in most countries. In fact, a recent court ruling says that even sharing copyrighted files is legal (late edit: in Canada, obviously)

And <http://www.emule-project.net> has been temprarily taken down because a virus is targeting it with a DDoS. Temporary link is <http://www.emule-project.org> .

I found that eMule didn't work for me because of port issues (running cable off a router), so I use K-Lite K++. My sis downloads a lot of music, while I go for little music and a little bit of video. I don't want to spend so much on Family Guy and Futurama dvd's, and since those bastards at FOX took them off the air (only hit shows other than The Simpsons, lol) and those bastards at my cable company (Adelphia, may they burn in hell) cut off Cartoon Network when they show Adult Swim and put in Fox Sports Net. They have about 50+ channels on basic cable and hundreds on digital cable to put Fox Sports Net on. So, I use Kazaa Lite. I used to have 50 songs, then they accidentally got deleted when I switched to K-Lite. Now I have 13, but it's all good.

It doesn't matter to what server you are connected, as you will get most sources through source exchange with other clients. The search function also searches the entire network, not just the server (unless you tell him to).

About the ports: you should be able to get High ID's if you forward the correct ports on your router.
